Veterans Not to Borrow
Unless Necessary

The mobilization rush of '18 had its peaceful counterpart today in a rush of veterans all over the land to borrow 50 percent of their adjusted service certificates as authorized by congress yesterday.

More than 20,000 stormed the doors of the 54 regional offices of the United States Veterans bureau during the first hour of the business today, and the file increased hourly.

The New York regional office was forced to call police reserves. Officers throughout the nation sent rush telegrams to civil service eligibles to report at once for duty.

Milwaukee—(P)—More than 300 applications for Veterans bonus loans were on file at the Veterans bureau today. President Hoover's veto of the bill yesterday, Henry W. Longfellow, regional director announced. He said more than 115,000 former service men in Wisconsin are eligible for increased loans. He expects about 75,000 to take advantage of the bill.

Washington—(P)—By mail and at the paying windows of the Veterans bureau thousands of ex-soldiers today obtained new loans against their service certificates. The law, making available half the face value of each certificate at 4 percent interest, went into effect yesterday as the senate joined the house in overruling the veto to President Hoover.

Immediately the veterans bureau paid out thousands of dollars in money. One check to a veteran was in the mail five minutes after the senate completed its 76 to 17 vote overriding the veto. Within an hour 400 were out and the total reached the thousand mark by nightfall. This from the Washington office. The 54 regional offices were notified to get into action and $17,750,000 of funds on hand was dispatched them to meet the checks.

President Hoover announced everything would be done to facilitate carrying out the law now that it was in effect, notwithstanding his objections to it. He requested Ad-

REPORT WINTER AMONG
MILDEST ON RECORD

Chicago—(P)—The middle west, with less snow than ever before and the highest temperatures in 40 years, rushed out another mild month today, wondering how much longer such weather could last.

As February slid by and still there was no cold snap, the United States Weather bureau released figures verifying what everybody has felt, "the winter now drawing to a close has been one of the mildest of record."

In the 60 years that temperature records have been kept, there have been only five winters warmer than this one and the last one of those was 1889-1890. The lowest temperature in Chicago all winter was 1 above zero and the average for the three winter months was 6 degrees above normal. On the 28th of February it was 34, and the lowest mark of the month was 12 degrees.

EMBEZZLER SENTENCED

Milwaukee—(P)—After pleading guilty to a charge of embezzlement of $2,000 from the Merchants bank where he was employed, Walter J. Towers was sentenced by Circuit Judge A. C. Hoppmann here yesterday to two to four years in the state prison. The offense was discovered about two months ago.

Fireman Killed, 13 Injured In Train Crash

THINK CAPONE
IS LOSING GRIP
AS "BIG SHOT"

Gangdom's Ruler Prepares to Wage Fight Against Jail Sentence

Chicago—(P)—A beginning of the end of the grip of power in Chicago of "Scarface Al" Capone, the internationally notorious gangster chief, was seen today by federal officials, they said, in the six-months jail sentence imposed upon him in federal court.

Toppled suddenly from his throne of apparent immunity by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, who found him guilty of contempt of court for failing to respond to a grand jury summons in 1929, Capone was pictured by government officers as losing ground because his reputation for immunity from punishment in the "Windy City" appeared to be broken.

But Capone, although apparently stunned by the length of his sentence, was in a fighting mood today, with his hope pinned in a 30 day stay of execution and an appeal by his attorneys to the circuit court of appeals. Meanwhile he was free under a $5,000 bond, which will have to be renewed in federal court Monday.

Having failed to convince Judge Wilkerson of the truth of his story that he was too ill to come up from his Florida home in the winter of 1929 to appear before the grand jury which was investigating the capone, Capone, long known as the "big fellow" of the gangster business, faced not only the fight on the appeal, but an appearance in criminal court next Wednesday for vagrancy.

Faces Vagrancy Trial.
"I shall be glad to try Capone for vagrancy," said Harry Ditchburne, assistant state's attorney. "He has had no legitimate occupation for years."

The sentencing of Capone—an unprecedented action in Chicago—was but one of many developments that came thick and fast in gangland circles. Tony "Dapper" Volpe, reputed to be the chief lieutenant, was ordered, deported to Italy by the department of labor at Washington. Almost simultaneously Judge Joseph Sabath announced the trial of Leo V. Brothers, St. Louis, accused of slaying Alfred Ling, Tribune reporter and friend of Capone, would be postponed next Tuesday to make way for the trial of William "Three Finger" White's second trial for the murder of a policeman.

While the Capone sentence brought gloom to "Scarface Al," it was just another victory in the 1,000 per cent record of United States Attorney George E. Q. Johnson, Jr. prosecuting Capone gangsters. His victories included the sentencing of Al's brother, Ralph, to three years, the imprisonment of Frank Nitti, known as "the Enforcer" for 18 months, the conviction of Jack Gussick, all for income tax evasion. And when Capone goes to jail it will be a new experience for him as he was held for almost a year in Pennsylvania for carrying a concealed weapon in 1929. Neither will there be any glory for him in the Cook-co (Chicago) jail, if Sheriff William D. Meyerling has his way. "He will be treated," said the sheriff, "just like any other prisoner."

LAWYER ASKS $50,000
FROM MRS. M'CORMICK

Chicago—(P)—Declaring that he lost "income, credit and prestige," in asking a senatorial investigation of Senator Charles D. Deneen's relation with "Diamond Joe" Eposito, Carol Giglioli, an attorney, asked $50,000 damages in a declaration on file today against Mrs. Ruth Hannah McCormick, defeated senatorial candidate.

Giglioli sets forth that he filed a petition in the U. S. senate Sept. 13, 1929, on Mrs. McCormick's suggestion. Although the petition never got beyond a senatorial sub-committee, Giglioli claims Senator Deneen's friends were "almost pauperized" by friends of Mrs. McCormick's political rival.

Uniform tests for the seventh and eighth grade final examinations were approved at the meeting. The fall meeting of the association will be at Ladysmith Sept. 21. Ten counties are represented in the association.

Dispute Center

GUNNAR H. NORDBYE

Asks Schall
To Support
His Charges

Washington—(P)—Senator Schall, Republican, Minnesota, was called upon today to furnish evidence to support his assertion that the nomination of Gunnar H. Nordbye as federal judge in his state was "personally obnoxious."

The demand was made by Senator Blaine, Republican, Wisconsin, chairman of a sub-committee considering the nomination, shortly after Schall had inserted in the committee report an statement that he regarded the appointment as a "personal affront" by Attorney General Mitchell.

Nordbye's nomination followed a sharp-spoken dispute between Schall and Mitchell and between Schall and President Hoover, which had its source in Mitchell's refusal to support a candidate recommended by the senator for the judgeship.

"Political opposition is not enough to base opposition on the ground that a candidate is personally obnoxious to a senator," Blaine said. "He must have made remarks reflecting on a senator's personal integrity, honor and family life."

Schall said he felt remarks made by Nordbye came under that category and that he would furnish the "evidence." He said a man named "Ed. Johns" had told him Nordbye had made scurrilous remarks about him.

Schall has asked the senate to reject Nordbye's nomination on the ground it was personally objectionable. Customarily such a plea is heeded.

ALIENISTS DECLARE
ALLEGED SLAYER SANE

Elizabeth, N. J.—(P)—Three alienists agreed today that William M. Frazer of Rahway, accused of killing his sweetheart, Mrs. Phoebe Stader, and motoring with her body to Virginia, is sane.

Victor Greenburg, counsel for Frazer, said he did not think it possible for the prosecution to establish the place of the shooting nor a motive. Frazer, brought back from Rahway, N. C., where he was arrested after leaving the woman's body in a woods near Bowling Green, Va., appears in a daze. He claims Mrs. Stader was shot accidentally when he reached for his rifle in the car in which they were riding.

BOTH ENGINES
QUIT TRACKS AT CAMP DOUGLAS

Victim Caught Beneath Locomotive as He Leaps
from Cab

LaCrosse—(P)—A fireman was killed and thirteen persons were injured at about 4 o'clock this morning when the Olympian track passenger train of the Milwaukee road, collided with a Chicago, Minneapolis, Omaha line passenger No. 515, at a crossing near Camp Douglas, east of here.

Albert Woods, 50, Oconomowoc, Wis., fireman on the Olympian, was killed. He was caught beneath the locomotive when he jumped from the cab.

The conductor and Engineer Taylor of the Olympian, together with twelve other persons were slightly injured.

Trainmen said the Olympian locomotive crashed into the side of the Omaha line engine. Both engines were derailed and about 500 feet of track was torn up on the Milwaukee right of way.

Service on both lines was re-established several hours after the accident. Three derricks were rushed to the scene to remove the wreckage.

All of the injured were rerouted to their destinations over nearby Northwestern lines. Officials of the LaCrosse division of the Milwaukee road who had launched an investigation into the cause of the wreck.

Blocked Intersection
The No. 515, northbound from Chicago to Minneapolis, was standing across the intersection. It had stopped at the Camp Douglas station. The Olympian's locomotive, crashed through an express car and was derailed.

Five clerks in the mail coach attached to the Olympian were severely shaken, but otherwise unhurt, when it was hit and baggage cars were crushed against the engine.

Three body of Woods was taken from the wreckage about 8 o'clock a. m.

Trainmen found a derail switch open on the Milwaukee road tracks. Heavy moisture on the tracks was believed to have contributed to the engineer's failure to bring his train to a stop. The injuries suffered by the engineer, James Taylor, Portage, were not serious.

SOLONS FIND BADGER
PRISON OVERCROWDED

Madison—(P)—First hand information concerning crowded conditions at the state prison at Waupun was being considered by Wisconsin legislators today, pending their return to sessions next week. The assemblymen and senators inspected the state's chief penal institution yesterday—a biennial feature of the study of appropriation measures for the state board of control.

They saw row after row of double deck cots in the corridors of each cell block, proving the contention of Warden Oscar Lee and the control body that space is inadequate. Lee told them 1,545 prisoners are incarcerated in the old grey buildings, constructed to house 550. The old cell house, built 70 years ago to hold 250 prisoners, now holds 274, and the prisoners are without water and toilet facilities in their cells. Warden Lee called this section of his institution a "disgrace to the state."

Lucas Violated Corrupt
Practices Act, Nye Says

Washington—(P)—The campaign funds committee reported to the senate today that Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican National committee, is chargeable with violation of the Corrupt Practices act in connection with the "circulation of scurrilous literature in Nebraska and other states" in the 1929 campaign.

Condemning incidents in the Nebraska senatorial race as a part of a conspiracy to defeat Senator Norris, the report said Lucas had failed to report to the house on the date prescribed by law the personal expenditure of more than $5,000 for campaign literature.

Chairman Nye submitted the report, which concluded in respect to this "that Mr. Lucas attempted to conceal the transaction, designedly failed to report as required by the Federal Corrupt Practices act, and is chargeable with willful violation of our Section 217."

This section prescribes a fine of not more than $10,000 and imprisonment for not more than two years. The report also assailed the unsuccessful attempt to file George W. Norris, Broken Bow green, in the primary against Senator George W. Norris to "confuse" the voters.

It declared further that Samuel R. McElwain, member of the farm board, had been guilty of "disseminating

Major Business Disposed Of By Congress; Session
Ends At Noon Wednesday

Washington—(P)—Congressional leaders claimed to have broken all records today with the calendar cleared of major business four days before adjournment.

The vital legislation of the short session enacted, the weary legislators turned to finishing the odds and ends, with time to spare before the adjourning hour at noon next Wednesday.

A veto by President Hoover of the measure providing for government operation of the Muscle Shoals power plant is awaited on Capitol Hill but leaders do not see enough votes in sight to enact this over the presidential disapproval.

The drive for passage of the appropriation measure, carrying $4,000,000,000 for next year's operation of the government ended suddenly yesterday with approval of a conference report adjusting differences on the naval supply bill.

So anxious were the congressional chiefs to obtain passage of these bills to avoid an extra session this spring that they surpassed any previous legislative performance.

The second deficiency bill providing about $100,000,000 to meet emergency legislation expenditures still is in conference but its passage early next week is expected.

Also, the constitutional amendment fixing a new meeting time for congress is assured in a conference and a deadlock between the senate and house. Leaders were doubtful today of ironing out this dispute which revolves about the house provision limiting the second session of congress to four months.

Legislation for new veterans hospitals and for continuing the maternity aid law also was in conference. The senate turned to work on the vestal copyright bill, passed early in the session by the house. The latter also had routine affairs to consider.

Senators Watson of Indiana, and McNary of Oregon, the Republican leaders upon whom fell the burden of steering legislation through the strife-torn senate, smiled today and reported an orderly adjournment in prospect.

The republican leaders in the senate won Democratic cooperation on expediting business after a compromise was finally reached on the bitter dispute over drought relief.

The protocol for American adherence to the world court still lies unacted upon but the senate foreign relations committee has held it aside until next December.

The defense introduced testimony to prove that Lila had no knowledge of the crime either before or after its commission and that others had motives at least equally strong to desiring the death of Mrs. Marchand.

OIL PRODUCERS VISIT
PRESIDENT HOOVER

Washington—(P)—A delegation of independent oil producers headed by Orlin Bullington of Wichita Falls, Texas, discussed with President Hoover today the question of an oil tariff.

BULLETINS

Washington—(P)—The senate today authorized the lobby committee to continue its investigation during the approaching recess. This was in response to the demand of Senator Davis, Republican, Pennsylvania, for inquiry into the published reports that a senator was paid $100,000 by a domestic sugar company during the pendency of the tariff bill.

Madison—(P)—An object believed to be the body of El. A. Aune, missing Baldwin assemblyman, was sighted on Lake Monona by police here this afternoon. While they watched, the object was swept under the ice by the current of the Yahara river which empties into the lake at that point.

CLAIM RELIEF WITHHELD IN DROUGHT AREA

Senators Also Charge Administration Failed to Help Unemployed

BULLETIN
Washington—(P)—Congressional conferees today abandoned efforts to formulate a constitutional amendment fixing a new meeting time for congress.

Washington—(P)—Democratic and Republican independent senators charged in the senate today the administration has failed at this waning session of congress to provide relief for drought sufferers and the unemployed.

After Senator Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, said Secretary Hyde was "deliberately" withholding drought loans already appropriated for, Senators Copeland of New York, and Walsh of Massachusetts, both Democrats—brought up the unemployment situation.

Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, said the "failure" was partly due to "lack of purpose and courage" on the part of congress. Senator La Follette, Republican, Wisconsin, also blamed congress for "surrendering" in the relief dispute.

"If we had adhered to the position taken by the senate," La Follette said, "we at least would have provided a fund that could be used for emergency purposes. Now it is too late to do anything with a situation which is appalling and will grow more so."

Emergency legislation to effect permanent relief, Senator Smith, Democrat, South Carolina, said "it is an indictment of the administration and previous administration that we produce so much wealth in this country that we go to the poor house."

Predicts Wage Cuts
A widespread reduction in wages was predicted by Senator Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky. He said congress was adjourning for nine months "without any general program" for dealing with economic problems.

"During the whole fight," he said, "the government has occupied the familiar position of the ostrich with its head in the sand."

La Follette said the "very people" who were leading the relief fight "surrendered," and those who waited their chance when they joined "in that abject surrender."

"This debate reveals," Borah then said, "that we are about to adjourn without taking care of those without security and even those with security for having difficulty getting the money we appropriated."

"We have four days more in which we may possibly correct that error. I suggested the possibility of putting an appropriation through of $10,000,000 to be used exclusively for those without security."

"If we do that we will have gone far to redeem ourselves for the failure of the past three months."

TWO HURT IN GAS STATION EXPLOSION

Builder Recently Involved in Labor Dispute at Racine

Racine—(P)—Two men were injured today in an explosion which wrecked the newly built gas and gasoline filling station operated by Eckert in the uptown section of the city.

Joseph Nelik, 24, the attendant, and Harold Organ, 27, a plumber, suffered cuts and burns. They were at work in the station when the explosion crumbled the concrete and brick walls of the ornamental structure. Both were expected to recover.

During the construction of the building, which opened for business last week, a police guard was furnished at Eckert's request following a labor dispute. The police guard had been withdrawn several days ago after the dispute was reported by Eckert as settled.

The injured plumber was finishing work on the pipe lines in the building. Both the plumber and attendant were injured seriously enough to be taken to a hospital. A police investigation was going forward pending the time when Nelik and Organ are sufficiently recovered to make a statement as to the cause.

5-POWER PACT
NOW BELIEVED

Mussolini Favors Accord
After Conference With British Leaders

EXPECT O. K. OF FRENCH
Both Nations Reach Accord
in Principle in Old Controversy

Rome—(P)—Great Britain and Italy today reached an accord in principle for the settlement of all naval problems left pending by the London conference of last year.

The accord will be submitted to the French foreign minister, Aristide Briand, in Paris tomorrow, and if he accepts it a five-power treaty carrying limitation of all categories of naval tonnage will emerge. Inasmuch as Foreign Minister Arthur Henderson of Great Britain, had already reached an agreement in principle with the French before initiating the conversations here, Mr. Briand's acceptance of the British-Italian accord was expected almost as a matter of course.

Mr. Henderson himself was so hopeful that he said a complete solution of the differences between France and Italy would be reached in Paris "if the talks there are as satisfactory as they have been here."

He left for Paris, with A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, and British admiralty experts, two hours after the negotiations had been finished, and hopes tomorrow afternoon to obtain full agreement with the French. When that is accomplished the text of the new accord will be submitted to the governments of the United States, Japan and the British dominions—signatory to the tripartite treaty of London for their final approval and the elimination of a five-power limitation document.

MUSSOLINI APPROVES
Negotiations which led to the accord have been carried on here for the past three days, largely by admiralty experts, following similar negotiations in Paris where all but the final details were ironed out. Yesterday Premier Mussolini himself took over Italian direction of the conversations and this morning gave his approval to the agreement. Then a brief joint communique was issued.

"As the result of friendly conversations, carried on in the spirit of cordial collaboration, which the Ministers Henderson and Alexander have had in the last few days with the head of the government and with Ministers Grandi and Sforzani, an accord has been reached on the principles of questions which remained in suspense after the London Naval conference."

"The terms of the project must be submitted to the French government and Ministers Henderson and Alexander leave for Paris today for this purpose. If the French government agrees the proposals will be submitted to the governments of the United States, Japan, Great Britain and the British dominions who were represented at the naval conference in London."

If today's accord is accepted by the French and written into the blank spaces of the London treaty, will settle, at least until 1935, long standing differences between France and Italy over the relative size of their fleets.

EXPECT U. S. APPROVAL
Washington—(P)—The plan for the adhesion of France and Italy to the London Naval pact, if satisfactory to Great Britain, is expected at the state department to receive the approval of the United States.

Pending receipt of details of the proposed settlement, high state department officials declined today to comment publicly.

It was considered probable that the exact status of the indirect, tentative Italian-French naval relationship will not be known until a full report is received from either Paris or Rome.

The attainment of even the tentative agreement was considered to mark further progress toward the fulfillment of the aims of the London conference than anything so far.

Although the American interest in the forthcoming league of nations general disarmament conference is not considered as important as that of some European nations, officials said today they considered a working out of the Franco-Italian problem, even if it went no further than its present status, would at least partially lift a cloud which would hang over the conference in 1932.

"If it opened without any semblance of agreement on navies between France and Italy."

THINK PASTOR'S BODY FOUND

Man And Woman Held As Suspects In Boscobel Slayings

Owner of Stolen Murder Car, Identifies Man Held as Thief

Boscobel, Wis.—(AP)—Crawford-co officials today awaited pictures from Chicago of Maurice P. Tennant, 23, and Miss Celma LeClair, 27, who, police there say, they have identified with the slaying of Patrick Gorman, 65, and his son, Paul, 13, in a raid on the Horrigan "treasure farm" near here last Nov. 11.

Gorman and his son were killed and Cornelius Horrigan was seriously injured in a gun battle with three men and a woman who invaded the farm posing as hunters. The Horrigan, Stephen, Cornelius and Ellen, brothers and sister, said the raiders demanded treasure reported hidden about the place.

The slayers escaped in a yellow sedan. This car was found in Chicago late in November, its rear end pierced with what police said were bullet holes. It was found to have been stolen from Edward O'Connor, Chicago, in a holdup.

Tennant identified those who saw the bandit car leave the reputed "treasure farm" went to Chicago and identified the stolen machine as the one in which the bandits escaped and O'Connor identified Tennant as the one who stole it.

Miss Le Clair was arrested after Joseph Erwin, 35, Tennant's uncle, was killed when he tried to hold up a Chicago policeman. Police raided the car to hunt, but Tennant was not there. He was found, by jumping from a second-story window.

Tennant, wanted for about 100 robberies, including ones at Trenton, N. J., and St. Joseph, Mich., was finally arrested, and police in Chicago said he had confessed theft of the O'Connor car.

Chicago police have also advised Crawford-co officials that he confessed driving the car to Milwaukee but denied all knowledge of the raid on the Horrigan farm.

Reports of wealth hidden about the farm were minimized by the Horrigan. They will be called to view the pictures of the pair arrested.

PUPILS INTERESTED IN ASTRONOMY STUDY

Grade Science Students at Roosevelt School Study Skies and Stars

Astronomy has become a fascinating study to eighth grade science students at Roosevelt junior high school. It is taught in the classes of Guy Barlow.

The students have learned the names and positions of most of the heavenly known constellations in the heavens, including Ursa major and minor, or the two dippers; Cassiopeia, the Queen's chair; Lyra, or the lyre; Auriga, the charioteer; Orion, the hunter; and Leo and Scorpio. Not only do the pupils know where these constellations are but they know the names of the important stars in each constellation.

Most of them have accompanied Mr. Barlow on his class trips to the Lawrence observatory.

Recently the class observed the moon over a certain length of time, stressing in their study, the date, the shape of the moon, its position, and weather notes.

Nearing End Of Alleged Murder Case

Kansas City—(AP)—With dramatic testimony in the record, the state summoned its final witness today for the murder trial of Mrs. Myrtle A. Bennett, 35, whose husband, John G. Bennett, was shot to death after a card game quarrel.

James R. Page, prosecuting attorney, said the state expected to rest its case today. Defense counsel, headed by ex-Senator James A. Reed and J. Francis O'Sullivan, declined to say whether the widow, thus far a silent and at times tearful spectator, would be their first witness.

The defense allegation that the death of Bennett, a wealthy business man, in his apartment the night of Sept. 23, 1929, was accidental was challenged in the testimony of Mrs. Anna Rice of West Frankfort, Ill., his half-sister.

While the defendant watched her husband die, she said, she "kept the motive secret" until after the trial. She asserted Mrs. Bennett had said:

"Nobody but me and my God knows why I did it. But I'll tell you, Annie, when this is all over."

Reed protested the introduction of the testimony of Mrs. Rice, a surprise witness. He demonstrated by questioning that she suffered from delirium.

A mock battle between O'Sullivan and Reed, a prosecutor twenty years ago in the courtroom in which he now is fighting for a woman's freedom, drew from Stanley M. Hall, deputy coroner, the statement the two shots that killed Bennett might have been fired accidentally.

Willette Henry, Negro maid, testified she heard four shots.

George R. Woodman, patrolman, testified Mrs. Bennett, weeping and hysterical beside her husband's body, exclaimed:

"Jack why did you do it, why did you do it?" and later said "if Jack's gone, I want to go too."

JOB COMMITTEE TO TELL PUBLIC ABOUT PROBLEMS

Citizens Must Become Acquainted With Purposes, Chairman Points Out

The necessity of acquainting the public with the aims and purposes of the local committee on employment was discussed at a meeting of the chairman and four sub-chairmen at a meeting Friday. Each of the chairman was instructed to study his phase of the problem during the week, and report at a second meeting of the group the latter part of next week.

It was pointed out at the meeting that the committee's work is not of a temporary nature. This group is not so much concerned with the relief of the present situation as it is with a concentrated study of the entire problem of employment so that serious depression periods can be avoided in the future. It will make an attempt to regulate employment over a period of years so employment periods of the past will not be repeated.

The committee will work toward coordination between agencies affecting employment, a matter which will necessitate the cooperation of all persons and agencies approached by the committee.

Although the cure must be found in the local units, the employment relief move is of national proportions. The first group was appointed by President Hoover, after which Governor Koehler selected a state committee. The local group was organized several weeks ago, with Gustave Keller, Sr. as general chairman. H. A. Schlichter is head of the committee investigating public and private construction; Paul V. Carey, regularization of employment in manufacture, commerce and public utilities; A. F. Kleizen, unemployment relief; and C. K. Boyer, employment offices.

A secretary probably will be elected at the next meeting of the group.

EXECUTIVES TO HONOR INSULL FOR SERVICES

Empire Builder in Utilities in Harness for Half Century

Chicago—(AP)—A man who still takes notes in shorthand and works eight hours a day after a half-century of service to the utilities industry has made him many times a millionaire, was host today to 700 executives who help administer his vast holdings.

He is Samuel Insull, probably the greatest living single figure in the world of public utilities. In the 50 years since he came to America from London to serve as private secretary to Thomas A. Edison, Insull has, through financial genius and daring, built an empire of electricity and gas that extends through 23 of the United States, Canada and England, employing 72,800 persons and serving heat, light and transportation to uncounted millions. The aggregate securities of the various groups under his name have a market value of more than $3,000,000,000.

The part played by Thomas A. Edison in Insull's career will be commemorated at a banquet tonight with "original" Edison lamps being used as table markers, while the aged inventor is scheduled to make a short talk which will come to the assemblage over a telephone connection from the east.

Starts Work Early Though his consistent distaste for personal publicity in any form has not allowed him to give out any "work hard and you'll succeed" maxims for the guidance of the younger generation, the results of Insull's thorough devotion to what he calls "his job" speak for themselves. Other offices in the Commonwealth Edison building open at 3:30, but Insull is at work at 7:45 daily, and usually has his desk cleared by the time the others arrive. Through the last 30 years of huge manipulations and cumulative success, his starting time of mornings has been set back a scant 15 minutes. According to his most intimate associates, the thought of retirement, or even contemplation of it, has never entered his mind, despite his 71 years.

Samuel Insull, then 21, and with only an elementary education in the private schools of London, Reading and Oxford, arrived in America on Feb. 28, 1881. He had been recommended to Edison by the inventor's London agent, as whose secretary Insull had shown unusual aptitude.

In another decade the young Englishman, by then a vice president of the General Electric company, was asked by directors of the Chicago Edison company to suggest a suitable president for their corporation.

He nominated himself, as the first stroke of the daring which was to carry him through many immense consolidations that have led to the accumulation of his present vast interests. He was accepted, and the story of his work in tying up dozens of utilities companies under centralized control and extending superpower lines is a vital chapter of the nation's industrial history.

Some of the major Insull concerns now are: Commonwealth Edison company, Middlewest Utilities company—a holding company owning a substantial majority of the common stocks in utilities operating in 23 states, and having 78 subsidiaries—Peoples Gas, Light and Coke company, Public Service company of Northern Illinois, Midland United company, and Western United company.

At 71, Insull is brisk, erect, hale and hearty, a picturesque and typical American big business man.

Many Wisconsin Lakes Are Alive With Bass

BY B. A. CLAFIN This article and the one preceding, both dealing with bass fishing, were called forth by a letter I received recently from a club of young anglers at Evanston, Illinois. The secretary of this organization of keen fishermen writes me that several members are coming up when the season opens and spend a week after Wisconsin bass. They want me to tell them where they will be sure to take bass, and how to fish for them. I replied that no one could guarantee that they would catch bass. But I could tell them where the bass are, the rest, quite naturally, being up to them.

I pointed out a half dozen good localities, such as the lakes about Manitowish, Crandon, the St. Croix River and the Cumberland region—they to take their choice. Also, I mentioned that if they wished to drive up onto the Menominee reservation they surely would have a grand time, enjoy some beautiful scenery and, if they were somewhat skilled as anglers, be reasonably sure of getting all the bass they wanted. I explained that anyone at Keshena would point out to them when they arrived there the right road turning east at that place to some very good lakes.

I have caught bass in these waters casting certain kinds of plugs. And I also have taken some very good ones using a fly rod and surface flies. But the latter combination

Honor College Scouts At Annual Ceremony

One of the features of the annual court of honor ceremony of the valley council of boy scouts at Lawrence Memorial chapel at 3:30 Sunday afternoon will be the recognition of approximately 100 Lawrence college men, all of whom were former boy scouts.

A survey was conducted at the college recently by M. G. Clark, valley scout executive, in which questionnaires were distributed among the men at one of the morning chapel sessions. Sunday afternoon they will receive small honor pins from the council.

The outstanding feature of the program will be the Pageant of Knighthood to be staged by boy scouts of Troop 17, Seymour, with the assistance of a group of Appleton youngsters.

Preceding the pageant there will be an impressive flag ceremony, with the banners of 42 nations flying in review from the chapel rostrum. Special flag racks are to be constructed on the platform in which the flags will be set during the ceremony.

The assembly of approximately 500 scouts from every troop in the council from Clintonville, Marion, New London, Seymour, Kaukauna, Neenah, Menasha, Brillion and Appleton will pledge allegiance to the American flag, led by Clord Schroeder, Orchestra Concert.

From 2:30 to 3:25 Sunday afternoon the Appleton high school band, under the direction of Jay Williams, will play a half hour concert in the chapel. A varied program of classical and popular selections has been selected. The orchestra is composed of approximately 25 members.

The address of welcome is to be given by F. N. Belanger, president of the valley council. During the course of the ceremony Mr. Belanger will make various awards, including Eagle scout badges, to 13 scouts of various troops.

The principal speaker will be W. E. Bannan, La Crosse, member of the national council and director of the Boy Scouts executive board of Chicago. Mr. Bannan has chosen as his subject, "The Eagle Scout and His Loyalty."

Scouts who are to take part in the program will gather at the old Alexander gymnasium on the college campus. They all have been requested to appear in full dress uniform. A parade will form at the gymnasium, and at 3:30 the group will march to the chapel, led by the drum and bugle corps playing under the direction of Mr. Schroeder. Motion pictures are to be taken of the parade on its way to the ceremonial hall.

GROCERY STORE HOLD-UP NETS 2 BANDITS $80

Robbers Flee North After Leaving Kemp's Store on Wisconsin-ave

Cash totaling between $30 and $90 was stolen by two bandits, who held up Charles Kemp, proprietor of Kemp's grocery, 420 W. Wisconsin-ave, about 9:30 last night. One of the bandits remained in the car outside the store with the motor running while the other entered the store and held up Mr. Kemp with a revolver.

Mr. Kemp said the two men had been loitering about the vicinity of the store for several hours prior to the robbery. Just as he was getting ready to close the store for the night, one of the men entered and ordered a package of cigars. As Mr. Kemp turned back, after getting the cigars, he was faced with a revolver and a command to "Get in."

The bandit ordered Mr. Kemp not to speak in a loud tone and ordered him to stand quietly. He then took a bag of change near the cash register, as well as all the cash in the register. The bandit then backed slowly from the store, but as soon as he got outside Mr. Kemp followed.

Mr. Kemp said he jumped on the running board of the bandit's car but quickly got off again when the bandit pointed the revolver at him. A passerby chased the bandit car to Highway 47, where it turned north. The car was thought to be a Pontiac sedan, blue in color.

Mr. Kemp said the exact amount of the loss could not be estimated exactly. Police were called immediately but the bandits had too great a start to be overtaken. A description of the bandit who entered the store was furnished by Mr. Kemp. The man was between 25 and 28 years of age, five feet, seven inches tall, weighed 160 pounds and had a ruddy complexion. He wore a gray cap and a brown overcoat. No description of the second man was available.

ICE ON PARTRIDGE LAKE BREAKING UP

Fishermen who have been seen daily fishing through the ice on Partridge lake at Fremont were forced to abandon their sport late this week when the ice slowly started to crumble, according to word received here. PAST LEADER OF LEGION AUXILIARY VESPER SPEAKER

Mrs. Adalin Wright Macauley to Discuss America Through Stereoscope

America Through the Stereoscope: Europe Through the Microscope will be the subject of the address by Adalin Wright Macauley, past national president of the American Legion auxiliary and honorary president of Fidae, at the twilight vesper service at the Methodist church at 4:30 Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Macauley's experiences in Legion and Fidae work have given her an enviable contact with government leaders and with world problems, and she brings to Appleton a message on international relations that few women can offer.

Mrs. Macauley, a Wisconsin woman, presided in French at the annual congress of the Fidae auxiliary at Belgrade, Jugoslavina, last September; she spent the past year in Europe directing the establishment of permanent headquarters of the Fidae auxiliary in Paris, and travel through the allied nations in the interests of the Fidae program of goodwill and better understanding between nations; and in September, 1928, she attended the Fidae congress in Bucharest, Roumania, where she was elected to the high office of president of the auxiliary. In 1927 she led 7,000 Auxiliary women to France when the Legion made its peace pilgrimage, and was the first American woman to preside over a national convention of American women held on foreign soil. In London she gave the toast to the women of Great Britain at a banquet presided over by the Prince of Wales.

The Sunday afternoon speech by Mrs. Macauley, the only one to be delivered on her visit to Appleton, will mark the end of the Methodist vesper series for this year.

NOTED SOPRANO, CLAIRE DUX, TO SING NEXT WEEK

Returned from Semi-Retirement at Request of Public, Press

Claire Dux, famous soprano, who will sing in Appleton next Tuesday evening, was born in Poland, but ever since she was 12 years old she had dreams of being a "great singer in America. Her dreams came true, but in 1926, when she married Charles H. Swift, she decided to give up her professional career, emerging only to sing on gala musical occasions.

After three seasons of semi-retirement, however, the public and press clamored so persistently for the return of the charming artist that Mme. Dux finally decided to devote part of each year to a limited number of concerts.

At heart, the singer is a middle westerner. "I like New York," she said in an interview, "it is very fascinating, like a jewel, but it is cold. It is like a great arm of Europe. There is a wealth of everything here except leisure. There is art—much of it—but no art of living.

"My heart is in Chicago, there by the lake, where I live. I never get tired of it. It has a wonderful future not just as a city of America, but as a city of the world. And I love California, too.

"Opera or concerts? It is difficult to say. I love to sing in opera when the whole cast is good. I do not like the old 'star' system. It is hard for us who have had our training in European opera houses—where the most minute care is given to the entire ensemble—to adapt ourselves to the old system. It is just like dancing. When I have a good partner, I love it. I never sang so well, for instance, as when I sang with Caruso."

Badger Progressives To Aid House Organization

BY RUBY A. BLACK Post-Crescent Washington Correspondent

Washington—Absence of all Wisconsin progressive Republican congressmen, except Rep-elect Gerald Boleau of Wausau, from the caucus of Republican members and members-elect of the House of Representatives here Thursday night is not expected to affect their vote on organization of the House in the 72nd Congress.

It is fully expected that all of them will vote for Republican organization, for all of them have committee assignments at stake or want better ones, and some of them have postmaster patronage at stake. None of them, except, of course, Rep. Michael K. Kelly of Fond du Lac, who is the lone Democrat in the Badger delegation, wants the Democrats to organize the House, although many of them will be found voting with the Democrats on much legislation, as is now the case.

Rep-elect Boleau accepted the invitation to the caucus before consulting present Wisconsin members of the House.

"I am a Republican," he said, "why should I not go to Republican caucus?"

Of course, Reps. William H. Stafford and John C. Schafer of Milwaukee, who are "regular" Republicans, attended the caucus.

The fear of attacks from certain "progressive" sources at a caucus when the state must be redistricted and one congressional district abolished is believed to have actuated the Wisconsin congressmen in staying away from the caucus. They do not want any unnecessary attacks made on them just now, when the state legislature holds their future political fates in its hands.

The recent adoption by the State Senate of the Cashman resolution chiding them for voting for the tariff bill when it first passed the House was a straw which showed them which way the wind is blowing.

Rep-elect Gardner Withrow of La Crosse, who succeeds Rep. Merlino Hull of Black River Falls, the only Wisconsin member who voted against the tariff bill the first time and thus the only one not condemned in the Cashman resolution, was not here for the caucus. Rep-elect Boleau succeeds Rep. Edward E. Browne of Waupaca.

Federal Dry Agents Destroy Large Alcohol Plant Near Shiocton

ARRAIGN MAN ARRESTED IN RAID ON FARM

Ray Milton, Alias Spears,
Furnishes Bond for Hearing on March 9

Five dry agents, from the federal prohibition office at Milwaukee, destroyed a large alcohol still on a farm about four miles north of Shiocton, just off Highway 76 yesterday afternoon.

The agents seized Ray Milton, alias Ray Spears, route 1, Shiocton. Milton was arraigned before U. S. Court Commissioner C. B. Dillett at Shawano this morning, and preliminary hearing of the case was set for March 9. Milton furnished bonds of $1,000.

W. Frank Cunningham, head of the prohibition office at Milwaukee, under whose direction the raid was made, said this morning that other arrests were expected in connection with the operation of this still.

The agents destroyed considerable equipment and distilling machinery. Among these were: two 1,500-gallon tanks, still base; a 400-gallon still base; a copper column 14 inches in diameter by 20 feet in height; two tons of coke; 6,000 pounds of corn sugar; 500 one-gallon alcohol cans; and condensing and "doubling" columns and pumps. About 125 gallons of alcohol in a tank were destroyed.

In six other raids in Milwaukee and nearby counties, federal prohibition officers of the Milwaukee branch arrested seven persons late yesterday and destroyed large quantities of assorted liquors.

At the Fishermen's and Hunters inn, near Milwaukee, William Schmitt was arrested and a wildcat brewery was seized. Several half barrels of beer were damaged. In a barn at the rear of 1814 Beau-grand-st., Racine, agents found a knocked-down still, 24 feet long, with a 15-horsepower boiler and other distillery apparatus. No one was arrested.

The other raids were near Milwaukee.

There was a general snow fall in the northern Montana region and in Yellowstone National park. A trace of snow was reported in Phoenix, Ariz., and Albuquerque, N. M.

10 DAYS REMAIN TO REGISTER FOR PRIMARY ELECTION

Only 10 days remain for registration at city hall for the primary election, Carl Becher, city clerk pointed out today. A week before the primary, March 27, registrations at the city hall will close to enable stenographers to prepare the poll lists.

The registration list was brought up to date the first of the year, when all persons who had not voted in 10 years were notified. About 670 recipients of these notices reestablished their voting privileges by re-registration, but hundreds of names were culled from the voting lists.

Unregistered persons who wish to vote at the primary will be forced to register at the polls, a procedure which involves the presence of two property holders. Registering at the polls is an inconvenience to both the voter and the election board, and the clerk urges that citizens attend to this task next week, rather than wait until election day.

WOULD PUNISH U. S. EMPLOYEES SELLING DATA ON RECORDS

Wilbur Makes Suggestion as Result of Kelley-New York
World Deal

Washington (AP)—Punishment for employees of the government selling papers or information concerning government records, and for those purchasing the data, has been proposed to congress by Secretary Wilbur.

His recommendation for such legislation, contained in a letter sent yesterday to Chairman Nye of the senate public lands committee, was the outgrowth of charges by Ralph S. Kelley against the administration of the interior department, published in articles the latter sold to the New York World.

Kelley, said Wilbur, entered into contract with the World. The contract provided the sum to be paid him would be cut in half if he were discharged before offering his resignation. Kelley first made public his charges in an open letter to Wilbur, resigning his post. After an investigation the resignation was rejected and he was discharged.

"A question of public policy is thus squarely presented," wrote Wilbur, "whether a newspaper for its own profit can, with impunity pay a government employee to write for it disclosures of confidential government records and to remain in government service while he is doing so, so that the newspaper may have the benefit of those documents and of his supposedly voluntary resignation."

Since the World has been sold, Wilbur said he had no wish to push the issue with that paper, though he termed the conduct of the old management "contemptible."

"I do strongly ask, however," he concluded, "that your committee devote itself to the constructive job of rendering repetition of such a job impossible."

TRIES TO CLOSE MURDER AGAINST LATE AUGUST

Santa Ana, Calif. (AP)—Mrs. Ella N. Pultz sought today to have the murder case involving her late daughter, Adele Ritchie, "the Dresden Doll" of the stage, closed.

In a will contest hearing in superior court here Feb. 19, ten months after her death, Miss Ritchie, known in private life as Mrs. Guy Bates Post, was held to have murdered her friend, Mrs. Doris Palmer, before committing suicide. Mrs. White, executrix of Miss Ritchie's will, announced he would appeal the strange case.

Superior Judge George K. Scovel, upon petition of Mrs. Pultz, yesterday ordered White to appear March 13 to show cause why he should not be removed as executor. Mrs. Pultz said great suffering and grief had been brought upon her by publicity occasioned by White's court action.

White sought to obtain for the estate $1,500 in insurance and $500 worth of jewelry which Miss Ritchie bequeathed to Mrs. Palmer. The Palmer heirs were upheld in their contention that Miss Ritchie could not legally receive property from the woman she had killed. The Ritchie estate was appraised at $1,652.

GEORGE E. KELLER
The funeral of George Edward Keller, 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Keller, was held at 2:30 Saturday morning from the Schommer funeral home, with services at 10 o'clock at St. Joseph church. Burial was in St. Joseph cemetery. Bearers were Francis Holmbeck, James Gerrits, Eugene Stark and James Van Roy.

CHIPPENAW FALLS (AP)—Mrs. William Richter, 56, wife of Mayor Richter, died suddenly yesterday after suffering a stroke.

CHIPPENAW FALLS (AP)—When snow adhered to the windshield of his car, making it difficult for him to see, Clinton Heiter, 23, Chippewa Falls, was killed in the machine's collision with a Soo line freight train yesterday.

CHICAGO (AP)—The practice of a $100,000 damage suit by Chalmers Chappell, 22, and John G. Velle, 40, dairy man owner, was filed here yesterday. Chappell, according to police, assaulted Velle on a train speeding towards Chicago last Feb. 16, after he had trailed Velle and Mrs. Chappell to Milwaukee from Crystal Falls, Mich.

PHILLIPS (AP)—A three-inch snow-fall blanketing this vicinity Friday was considered of great benefit to agriculture, although too late for logging operations. The snow was heavy and was not expected to drift. Conditions last night were favorable for more snow.

JANUARY SHOWS GREATER DROP FOR RAILROADS

Decrease in Net Operating Income Nearly 30
Per Cent

BY CHARLES F. SPARE
Copyright, 1931, by Cons. Press
Wall Street, New York.—Coming after a year described as one of the worst ever experienced by the railroad of the United States and in which their gross earnings decreased over $1,000,000,000, or about 16 per cent, with a shrinkage of over 24 per cent in net revenues, their earnings statements for January, in the main available Friday, present a discouraging picture.

It is estimated that the decrease in net operating income of the carriers for the past month was nearly 30 per cent. For the first 30 roads it was slightly under 25 per cent, but the figures now presented of some of the large systems show so much higher percentage of loss than earlier ones that the total net shrinkage is likely to be above the original predictions. For instance, the Pennsylvania lines reported a net loss in January of 50 per cent, the Baltimore & Ohio 45 per cent, and the Southern Railway 70 per cent. The Atchafalaya is off nearly 35 per cent.

Most Reports Similar

Except for a few roads, including those in the northwestern section of the United States, the returns have the same general aspect, namely a heavy decrease in gross revenues and a much higher percentage of net operating decrease. The Northern Pacific, Great Northern and Burlington were successful in overcoming their original losses. All indicate larger operating income than a year ago. The Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific also makes a relatively good showing in net compared with gross. In contrast is the net loss of the Union Pacific in January of over 25 per cent and by the Southern Pacific of more than 65 per cent, while in the southwest the St. Louis-San Francisco had an operating income more than 40 per cent under last year and a substantial deficit after fixed charges. On the other hand, the Missouri Pacific earned nearly as much for its dividend and interest in January as in a similar period in 1930, though some of its subsidiaries did not do so well.

Even the Bangor & Aroostook, which stood out among American railroads in 1930 for increases over 1929, showed a heavy decline in January following the trend of the other New England systems, such as the Boston & Maine and New York, New Haven & Hartford, which suffered from the reduction in freight and passenger revenues. The New England and the Bangor & Aroostook both lost about 25 per cent in net operating income.

Coal Roads Lose
The anthracite coal roads, with the exception of the New York, Ontario & Western, all showed decreases in net. These were small, relative to losses of the carriers of bituminous coal. The Norfolk & Western, which went through a portion of 1930 with a high net operating income, showed a corresponding loss in 1931, had a loss of nearly 40 per cent in net operating income in January. The Chesapeake & Ohio and Virginian likewise showed the effects of a shrinkage in the movement of soft coal into the industrial centers and to tidewater.

Since the end of January, car loadings have made a more favorable comparison with a year ago. They are still much below normal. Those lines that report their gross revenues each week indicate that the February decreases will be less considerable. The Southern Railway, for instance, reports that Friday a gross reduction for the third week of the month of over 30 per cent. Other parts of the system indicated even larger losses.

Altogether, the outlook for net operating income in the first half of this year is decidedly unfavorable. This fact has a direct bearing on the dividend policies to be pursued in the next few months by the managements of railroad systems that have paid their dividends in 1930 but paid a portion of them from the surplus accumulated between 1925 and the middle of 1929. It is reasonable to expect that a number of dividend reductions will be compelled by the existing situations in the near future.

Nevada motorists paid an average fee of $33.85 in 1930 to operate their automobiles.

Briefs About Badgers

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The terrified scream of a woman worker in the city hall yesterday, brought a male employee to the side of Mrs. Minnie Loksewski, 48, just in time to prevent her from jumping from the third-story railing into the rotunda below yesterday. She was taken to a hospital for mental examination.

MADISON (AP)—Search continued today for Assemblyman H. A. Aune, 51, St. Croix co. Police dragging parts of Lake Monona behind the Fauerbach brewery was unavailing late yesterday. A note left by Aune for Dr. C. A. Harp, state health officer, indicated his body might be found in the lake "east of the capitol," and the only open water in that direction is that which was searched.

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Mayor Daniel Webster Hoan informed Attorney Chas. E. Yockey yesterday that his (the mayor's) is one of the "missed" heirs to the $50,000 estate of Mrs. Annie Carpenter, Milwaukee, who died Feb. 21. She left a fifth of her estate to the late Mrs. Margaret Osburn, Waukesha, who, the mayor revealed, was his mother.

CARRIER PIGEON BECOMES CHARGE AT CITY POOR HOME

Apparently the depression is affecting even pigeons.

A carrier pigeon, carrying the number CC29232, dropped in on the City Home Friday afternoon and seems to have full intentions of becoming a city charge. John Harth, keeper of the home, made no attempt to take him inside yesterday, but this morning when the pigeon had proved that it had discarded its homing instincts, the bird was brought inside and fed. It may be tired, it may have lost its way, it may be weary of going around in a circle—and on the other hand, it may have decided to protect its old age by becoming a city charge now.

REAL ESTATE TAX PAYMENTS ARE EXTENDED

Property Owners, by Filing
Affidavit, Have Until June 1 to Pay

The tax collection period for those who are unable to pay their taxes was extended until June 1 at a special meeting of the common council Friday night. Any person unable to pay his taxes now can avoid the payment of a penalty by filing an affidavit with the city treasurer before March 15, testifying that he cannot pay.

The law, signed by the governor Wednesday, is a relief measure for the unemployed. The extension applies only to real estate taxes, personal property assessments drawing a penalty after today.

The law stipulates that the treasurer shall mail a notice in red ink on the tax roll opposite the name of the person filing an affidavit. Then the usual procedure will be followed; all delinquent taxes will be turned over to the county on March 22, and after the fourth Monday of April they will be advertised for sale. However, all persons who have filed an affidavit will be entitled to pay their taxes up to June 1 without penalty, interest or other charges except the fee for advertising the tax sale. But if the taxes are not paid by June 1, they will be enforced by tax sale, and will be subject to the same interest, penalties and charges as other delinquent taxes.

The law was adopted unanimously by the 11 aldermen present. Alderman George Packard was absent.

The city treasurer's office and the lobby of city were crowded with taxpayers from early Saturday morning until noon. Most of the large taxes came in by mail Saturday morning, the total reaching $149,000 by noon. The week's total was $474,600—$44,247 on Tuesday, $104,235 on Wednesday, $77,539 on Thursday, and $99,579 on Friday.

WINTER WEATHER ON MENU FOR WEEKEND

Old King Winter will hold sway over Appleton and vicinity over the weekend, according to the weather man. Spring gave way to winter Friday morning and in less than three hours the landscape was plastered with a layer of snow approximately two inches deep.

Appleton residents were kept busy Saturday morning dodging streams of slush sent into the air by passing motorists. Late Friday evening the slush on College-ave was almost ankle deep.

Skies will be cloudy Sunday and the mercury is due for a drop, the weatherman says. Moderates temperatures prevailed Saturday. At 6 o'clock this morning the mercury registered 35 degrees above zero, while at noon it registered 34 degrees.

NOMINATION PAPERS FILED BY JUDGE BERG

Judge Theodore Berg, who will be a candidate for reelection as municipal judge, today filed his nomination papers with John E. Hantschel, county clerk. Judge Berg is the first of the judicial candidates to file his papers. He was appointed to office in 1925 and was reelected for a four-year term in 1928, without opposition. This spring he will be opposed by the former district attorney, John A. Lonsford. County Judge Fred V. Heinemann, who also will seek reelection next spring, so far has no opposition. The judicial candidates must file their nomination papers on or before March 13.

RECKLESS DRIVER IS FINED $10 AND COSTS

Clarence Walker, New London, was fined $10 and costs by Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court Friday afternoon when he pleaded guilty of reckless driving. He was arrested by Charles Stolz, county motorcycle officer, for driving at a high rate of speed through the village of Hortonville.

Veterans Rush To Borrow Funds On Certificates

showing certification of their need from veterans organizations and the various relief organizations dealing with unemployment, will get first attention.

"The recent survey of the larger cities shows, in the opinion of the administrative of veterans affairs," said Mr. Hoover, "that about 6 per cent of the total number of veterans in industrial centers are now receiving support from the local unemployment and other relief committees."

Local Aid Required

"This bill will relieve some of the burden now being carried by these committees, but as the amount possible for many veterans to borrow under the bill is so small, it is urgently necessary that the local committees shall continue their service to many veterans."

The veterans bureau hoped to maintain its present rate of making loans within ten days of the time the application is received. Only the certificates which have been in force two years or more may be borrowed on, under present tentative rulings which probably will remain in effect. This is estimated to exclude approximately 100,000 veterans until the two year date is reached by their papers.

The bureau has been advised by numerous banks that they will make loans on the certificates at the new interest rate. Through a substantial volume of business, officials believed the banks would be able to make money on the 4 1/2 per cent.

The senate debated for three hours before jammed galleries preceding the vote, but the issue was never in doubt. Four more members voted for the bill this time than on original passage, while the president's supporters were increased by five only. The house had acted the day before in one-third the time, voting 328 to 79 to override the veto.

STATE NEARS CLOSE OF KIRKLAND TRIAL

Testimony of Coroner's
Doctor Practically Ends
Prosecution's Case

Valparaiso, Ind. (AP)—Love and vengeance stood on the sidelines here today as the trial of Virgil Kirkland, Gary Athlete, for the murder of Arlene Draves, his school-mate, continued.

The love is that of Kirkland's mother, who daily sits among the front row spectators, her eyes always on the back of her accused 20-year-old son, scarcely an arm's length away at the defense counsel table.

Vengeance rides with the silent, grim-faced father and the sisters and brothers of the 18-year-old girl. The father, even though he has made peace with Kirkland's father-sits with the prosecutors, suggesting, now and then, points to ask witnesses. The sisters and the brothers of the dead girl sit just outside the court railing, near the seat occupied by Mrs. Kirkland. But they, unlike his mother, declare nothing but death in the electric chair can atone for the tragic and untimely death of Arlene.

With introduction of testimony of Dr. James B. Burcham, 39, coroner's physician yesterday, the state virtually completed the mesh of evidence designed to convince the jury of Kirkland's guilt.

Kirkland is the first of five young Gary men to be tried. All are alleged to have bespelled the girl during that much mentioned liquor party in Gary, Ind., last fall. They remain yet Judge Crumpacker's decision on the admissibility of an alleged confession which Kirkland is reputed to have made involving himself, David Thompson, host on that fatal occasion, Paul Barton, Leon Stanford and Henry Shirk. Thompson and Shirk are married.

Doctor's Testimony
Dr. Burcham, definitely declared yesterday that shock induced by assault together with cerebral hemorrhage, caused the death of Miss Draves. The hemorrhage was due to a blow or a fall, both the result of Kirkland's brutality, the state contends.

Richard Sturtevant, three years a half-back at DePaul university and once a member of the Chicago Bears professional football team, told of being a guest at the party on Nov. 23, 1930.

As a preliminary he testified that drinking liquor was general among the 16 guests, collegians, young business folk, youths just out of high school as were Arlene and Virgil.

500 IN LINE IN K. C.

Kansas City (AP)—A crowd of World war veterans waiting to file applications for loans on their adjusted compensation certificates gathered long before the regional office of the United States veterans bureau opened here this morning.

By 9:30 a. m. about 500 men were in line. Many of them were poorly dressed. A few wore overcoats that had seen service in World war days. John Brody, regional director, said veterans applying for loans today would receive their money within a week.

A reporter interviewed a score or more of the early arrivals. "Without exception for former service men they were out of work and had been for many days."

2,700 APPLY IN HOUR

Boston (AP)—More than 2,700 applications for veterans' loans were received at the regional office of the veterans bureau during the first hour today.

BETTER OUTLOOK SEEN FOR HOUSE BUILDING IN 1931

Loosening Up of Mortgage Money Adds Brighter Aspect to Industry

Babson Park, Florida.—As mortgage money is gradually loosened up, home building should become the bright spot in the 1931 construction industry. Building as a whole may not be much better than in 1930, because there is still a surplus of commercial structures, of factories, and certain other non-residential types. Residential building, on the other hand, already shows signs of trying to turn upward. For twenty-four months residential building has swung almost steadily downward, and for at least thirteen months it has been distinctly subnormal. Last year it was about 60 per cent below 1929.

In the meantime about two million couples have married, many old houses have become untenable, and the normal accumulation of demand for new housing has piled up. This demand has been held back because of lack of mortgage money, unemployment, and reduced incomes. Families have doubled up. Sons and daughters have gone to live with parents and parents have gone to live with sons and daughters. Sooner or later these people will build or buy homes of their own. The extreme lack of building in the past year and a half has gone far toward correcting the previous overbuilding of houses for the country as a whole. Certain localities still have a surplus of dwellings, but in general the surplus is far less pronounced than in industrial, commercial, and certain other non-residential structures.

Costs Reduced
Reduction in cost of building materials has brought them down on an average to where they were fifteen years ago, thus affording favorable opportunities for home builders.

In the past five years lumber has declined 38 per cent, cement 13.3 per cent, brick 27.5 per cent, and copper 25 per cent. The building material situation, therefore, is distinctly favorable to revival in home building. Building wage rates have officially held up, but because of willingness to work and because of increased efficiency, actual labor costs per job are running anywhere from fifteen to twenty per cent below a year ago. The man who builds now not only profits from lower costs, but receives a better job.

Unfortunately most people build when costs are high, when they have to compete with everybody else for labor and materials. That is because in boom times mortgage money is plentiful. Loans are made liberally, and this encourages speculative over-expansion. The wise man is the one who builds at a time like the present, when he has the pick of the materials and the pick of labor, and pays a price low enough to assure him of sound value regardless of general real estate fluctuations. This is property land and where surrounding values promise to improve rather than deteriorate as time passes.

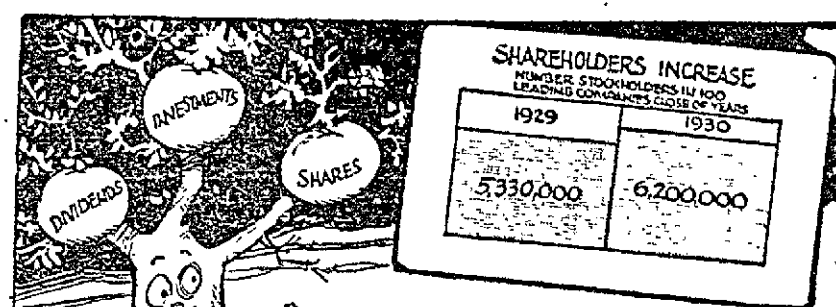

Money Plentiful
The reason people have not been building recently is because real estate mortgages, particularly in the smaller cities and towns, have been extremely difficult to obtain. The dominating factor in the residential building situation is mortgage money and has always been. Even if building costs were one-third lower than they are now, it would not help home building as long as mortgage loans were scarce. Similarly, if building costs were one-third higher than they are now, it would not hinder an upward movement in building, if mortgage money were plentiful.

At first it seems strange that with a superfluity of money in the large financial centers and with interest rates the lowest in history, real estate loans continue tight. The reason is that banks and other institutions have been cleaning house on over-expanded real estate loans made during the boom times preceding the 1929 crash.

Excellent progress has already been made in cleaning up foreclosures. In a typical small American city, the registrar of deeds reports that real estate foreclosures in 1929 represented 2 per cent of all instruments recorded. This compares with 1.2 per cent in 1928; .9 of 1 per cent in 1927; and less than 1 of 1 per cent in the preceding 7 years. While this is only one locality, it is probably typical of the many small American cities and towns. Gradually the banks are disposing of such property, even taking losses in some cases, and in this spring's real estate market they ought to complete most of the necessary real estate liquidation. When a bank sells a house which it has had to take over, the sale brings up a certain amount of credit for the building of a new house. The bank acts some down payment, has a live mortgage, and it pays regular interest. By midsummer, or fall, banks should have considerably more money which they are willing to loan on mortgages. As this occurs it will greatly stimulate building.

Signs of Improvement
The worst of the decline in residential building has apparently already occurred. Figures of contracts awarded show a smaller comparative decline in the past two months than for more than a year, which would indicate that the curve is flattening out preparatory to a gradual upward movement. Another significant barometer, giving a more positive indication, is the record of building permits in Metropolitan New York for January.

Shares Of Stock Held By Public Increases

BY ALLARD SMITH
Executive Vice President, The Union Trust Co., Cleveland, O.

American investors never so forcefully indicated their acceptance of the elder Morgan's advice not to "sell America short" as in 1930. Although the year was marked by a depression and dis-couraging business development, the number of corporate stockholders increased by many hundred thousand.

This fact is highly encouraging in that it reveals underlying confidence on the part of investors in the ability of industry to shake off the depression and come again into prosperous times. Already this faith seems to have been justified by current evidence that business recovery is getting under way.

Every group of industry showed a gain in the number of holders of shares in 1930. One compilation shows that 100 leading corporations have the vast number of 6,200,000 stockholders against a total of 5,330,000 one year ago, an increase of 16 per cent.

For some companies there were astonishing increases in the number of holders of shares. General Motors, for instance, with a total of 261,417 shareholders, shows an increase for the year of 31.6 per cent. One large investment trust with 108,000 shareholders shows an increase of 25 per cent. Confidence of the public utilities was indicated by the fact that for a group of these companies with 1,320,000 stockholders there was an increase of 27 per cent in 1930.

Nothing speaks so well for the future of American industry as this showing of widespread public participation in ownership. We are rapidly approaching, if we have not already reached, the place where the public, in addition to furnishing the men and the market for industry, is furnishing the money.

Late Congress Sessions Disappointing To Society

BY SALLIE V. H. PICKETT
Washington.—These are days of disappointment for Washington society, especially those who give dinner parties during the closing days of congress.

Not a host, great or small, but who is casting about for guests to fill in at such affairs planned weeks ago as brilliant social events.

The electric light atop the capitol dome, gleaming on nights when the senate or house, or both, are working late, tells the story. On such nights hosts are apt to fuss over an empty place at table or fill in quite often with just anyone who will attend.

Secretary Mellon had just had such an experience. A few nights ago when he essayed to give a dinner for Speaker and Mrs. Longworth, guest after guest being compelled to drop out. It was an engaging dinner party which the secretary finally rounded up, however.

Embassies give the most brilliant touch to society and while their dinner parties are upset to some extent, they are not drawing on the house and senate for many of their guests.

There are other kinds of dinner parties in progress just now which are not reckoned as so much by ultra smart society. One of these events was the dinner given at the Women's National Democratic club during the week and which had as its guest-speaker Representative Ruth Bryan Owen.

As one of the senator guests remarked, "Politics seemed not to have cooled the ardor of womanhood for finery, for a better dressed company has not been seen in the capital this winter."

Since the death of her mother, Mrs. William Jennings Bryan, many months ago, Mrs. Owen has dressed in black but not in mourning and she was a charming figure in her clinging evening gown of black georgette, quite conservatively fashioned.

Another party outside the pale of the smart set was the luncheon which Mrs. Eleanor Patterson gave in her Dupont circle home—the house occupied by President and Mrs. Coolidge when the White House roof was being repaired—in honor of the Women's National Press club. Mrs. Patterson is a member of the press club and while her million a year income exceeds that of the ordinary reporter or even the owners of the average paper, she is leads the way for improvement in other parts of the country. Hence the gain of twenty-one per cent in valuation of permits for January over December, and the gain of thirty per cent compared with January a year ago, is distinctly encouraging. However, for the country as a whole, January permits still were about thirty per cent below the preceding year. If history repeats itself, the definite improvement in New York should gradually spread to other sections of the country.

One of the most encouraging recent developments in building is the organized effort of the industry itself to establish standards of quality, workmanship, and financial responsibility in construction. A strong movement is underway for the establishment of investigating bureaus to protect both the public and the building industry from the unscrupulous or irresponsible elements which creep in during the speculative and inflationary periods of boom years. Banks and other mortgage lenders are co-operating toward closer control of plans and specifications, and architectural and structural merit. Now home buyer or home builder is now in command of the situation and only those contractors who give full value for every dollar received can hope to get the business.

Business in the building industry was almost stagnant last year, but in the first few months of this year a revival is apparent. The building industry is now in a position to take advantage of the favorable conditions which are now prevailing. The building industry is now in a position to take advantage of the favorable conditions which are now prevailing. The building industry is now in a position to take advantage of the favorable conditions which are now prevailing.

MEADOWS WASHER FINEST MACHINE, DEALER CONTENTS

Speed Can Be Adjusted to Fit Kinds of Clothes Being Washed

"It's the world's finest washing machine," said George H. Wiese as he pointed out the features of the Meadows select-speed washer to the reporter who interviewed him Friday.

There is much to substantiate Mr. Wiese's enthusiastic attitude toward the Meadows washer. This machine is the only one whose speed can be adjusted to fit the kinds of clothing being washed.

Chiffons can be washed in the Meadows select-speed even more safely than by hand. Simply by turning the dial, a low, gentle yet thorough cleansing speed is secured.

For linens and similar materials, another speed is available and still other ones for other materials. Thus the Meadows washer can be adapted to fit the needs of the particular tubful of clothes being washed.

Select-A-Speed is Ultra Modern. The Select-A-Speed is as easy to operate as a radio dial—the desired speed is secured much as the user would tune in a radio station. In ultra-modern fashion, Select-A-Speed contains but few parts and these are encased in steel. The mechanism runs constantly in a bath of oil.

The controlled speed adds life to every garment and eliminates the wear and tear of the ordinary washer. In addition, the Select-A-Speed Meadows washer cleanses by water action alone.

The revolutionary feature of the Meadows washer—its Select-Speed principle—is simple in construction, yet remarkably effective. There are no clutches and there is no engagement or disengagement of gears.

Ten Exclusive Features
There are ten exclusive Meadows features which make the machine outstanding, summarized in brief, they are:

Select-A-Speed—a washing speed for every type of fabric; no engagement or disengagement of mechanical unit; seamless copper tub merged with steel inner jacket under 1,500 tons pressure; chromium finish over nickel or copper; double VV belt drive; sixvane impeller; extra large wringer rolls of Meadows Elastic—pure black para rubber; die-cast wringer of Doehler White Metal; constantly circulating bath of oil; lubricating every mechanical part of power drive; controlled water washing.

So well-built is this Meadows Select-A-Speed washer the machine will wear longer and last longer than any other machine in its class. It is a machine that will last for years, there has not been one service call reported because of belt trouble.

George H. Wiese, in charge of Appleton's outstanding plumbing headquarters, is justified in his regard for the Meadows Select-A-Speed washer which sells for $165. He will be glad to arrange a home demonstration.

Mr. Wiese is also displaying two smaller and highly efficient washers bearing the name of Meadows. These are priced at the low figures of $99.50 and $135. Meadows washers, of course, may be purchased with gasoline motors made by Briggs & Stratton the finest small gasoline engine in the world. This, of course, is planned largely to bring the advantages of Meadows Select-A-Speed washer to people living where electricity is not available.

The prospective buyer will do well to phone 412 for an appointment to call at the Wiese Headquarters, 619 W. College-ave soon.

DRAFT PROGRAM TO LOWER UNEMPLOYMENT

Madison.—(UP)—An industrial program to reduce unemployment has been drafted by the Wisconsin Citizens' Committee on Employment, Don D. Leschler, secretary, announced today.

The committee makes the following recommendations:
Maintenance of pre-depression wage levels.

Allowance of one day of rest in seven for all employees.

Setting of a 50-hour week as a maximum for Wisconsin industries with the recommendation that the present 39-hour week not be voluntarily extended to men.

That all employers refrain from working employees overtime, and work out a method to add in this reduction.

That three shifts be used on continuous operations with the hope that the 11 and 12 hour shifts will be permanently wiped out.

Urging employers to add more employees until they are employing a full force before increasing the number of hours per work day they are working.

That employers gradually increase their forces and work to stock on such items as they can, building up somewhat larger but reasonably sized inventories.

Heavy stocking by merchants to stimulate manufacturing and create increased buying on the part of the industrial population.

That all employers undertake as soon as contemplated repairs, renovation and remodeling work.

That employers use the public employment offices more freely.

New Rules Make Beauty Contest More Difficult

Galveston, Tex.—(UP)—The business of bathing beauty competition, like some other lines of endeavor, is tougher than it used to be.

Contestants in the 1931 international beauty pageant here must measure up to new standards of health, appearance and physical perfection.

Doctors will serve as judges in the preliminaries to testify as to the naturalness of entrants' hair, teeth and complexion.

An entrant must be not less than 16 nor more than 25 years of age, unmarried, and a bona fide resident of the locality she represents for at least six months. She must be proficient in at least one outdoor sport, and she must not smoke or drink.

Appearance on the stage or in motion pictures for a six-month period disqualifies her on grounds of professionalism.

Other minor restrictions in the final elimination ban tallas or fancy headgear, fix a standard size name ribbon to be worn and squelch the stockings ad by specifying full-length opera hose.

But if the qualifications are more stringent, the rewards are greater. "Miss Universe," the grand champion, will receive $2,500. Instead of the $2,000 awarded last year.

THE PROBLEM OF MUSCLE SHOALS
No useful purpose is served by denouncing the conference bill on Muscle Shoals as "socialist legislation tending to sovietize the government and communize the people," any more than it may be helped by the blast that opposition comes from "predatory wealth arraigned against the poor people of the country." The matter at stake is really too important with possibly extreme after effects, for either side to indulge in anything but sensible discussion.

The virtues of our democracy are plain enough on every hand but the attempt to insidiously eat into it and drain it of its vitality is not always so evident. The conference report is dangerous from the latter standpoint though the talons have been ostensibly sheathed in the provision giving the president one year's time within which to effect a private leasing. The charge is that the proposed lease to private interests is so hedged by cumbersome conditions as to make it practically impossible to conclude the same, in which contingency the bill actually pushes the government of the United States into the industrial enterprise of manufacturing nitrates. In case of private lease the lessee is required to devote the government plant entirely to the production of fertilizer. He may buy from the government power plant 15 kilowatts of electricity for every 100 he uses in the fertilizer plant but cannot put the additional power to work at any place on the leased property nor use it to divert any by-product useable in the manufacture of fertilizer to any other purpose. Perhaps a private lease may be made by the president but it is thought most unlikely that any individual can be found to accept such onerous conditions. Failing to find such an individual our government is plunging into the manufacturing game, not only with all its hazards and the consequent ill effects upon those already in it, which is, in our judgment, important enough but really the least important of the objections, for running an industrial enterprise according to political standards is the acme of recklessness.

"Let the government do it" is the pith of all socialism, an idea which is not only unsound but patently so, a chimera made of the stuff of which dreams are made mixed with the vagaries of the winds. In a centralized government, in an autocracy or under a dictator, government-run industries may and sometimes do succeed,—in democracies they are essentially arrant failures.

The Post-Crescent does not believe that the governments, state or national, should part with the title to their great remaining diamond mines, waterpower, but the best proposal so far of handling them in the public interest is that advanced by Governor Roosevelt of New York, involving a leasing to private interests with schedules of rates to be charged the public in the leases and with provision for a periodic correction or modification in keeping with altering public conditions. Thus the government forever holds the whip and is always master. At the same time the blunders, the corruptions, the laziness, inefficiency and wastes of public operation are avoided. So in fact the people are doubly protected, from exploitation on the one hand and the evils of politics-in-business on the other.

That the people may be faced with a hard problem as they are in respect to these power matters, should not mislead them to fly from "evils of which they know to evils they know not," as they did in the case of prohibition. Let the people instead face this plain and essential truth: A government which holds the strong curb rein either by ownership of power sites or the right otherwise to regulate rates, and is from that powerful position unable to do so properly, has thereby shown itself doubly incapable of further and extensive active operations; or if a government is without sufficient resourcefulness or talent to run a fraction of the job how can it expect to capably run it all?

First of all the government has certain "essential powers" that simply must be exercised through governmental agencies. With that we all agree. Next there is a field of activity that is not really essential and yet non-socialistic such as the work performed by the departments of labor and commerce, of agriculture, the bureau of education, the fish commission, and other scientific bureaus of the government, the purposes of which are to educate, inform and otherwise aid the people in their individual battles in life.

But when we step beyond the "essential powers" and these other non-essential though non-socialistic powers, we plunge immediately into the morass of socialism. Before we do that we had better take pretty careful survey of the situation, for the swamp ahead is not only extensive but every step taken makes all the more difficult if not impossible a withdrawal again to safe and high ground.

We are never going to have a scientifically perfect government until the 'Almighty makes men perfect, but by careless acts we can have a much more imperfect one than we have.

PROSAIC LAWS
There are, unfortunately, a good many prosaic laws on our statute books. The purpose for which these laws were originally enacted has changed, or they are of such character that people ignore them. If all the laws now on the statute books were enforced, the country might not be a very pleasant place in which to live.

But bad as the situation is with us, in England it is worse. They have had a longer time in which to accumulate a supply. Some of them date back hundreds of years and seem absurd now, but they never have been repealed.

In Manchester, England, newspapers were notified last week that according to a law of 1677 they are forbidden to do any work on Sunday to get out their Monday editions. The man who was determined to enforce this statute is secretary of the Sunday Games and Freedom League. He recently had his brother arrested for failure to attend church on Sunday, there being a law to back him up on that worthy subject. His purpose of course was to obtain the repeal of these laws by their strict enforcement.

Not many laws are repealed. Our state legislatures are prolific in producing a medley of statutes covering every phase of human activity, and many of them become obsolete through changing conditions. Yet they are allowed to stand on the records and many times are used for the purpose of harassment. It is so easy to pass them and so difficult to find the time to discuss their repeal, no matter how prosaic they have become.

So the probabilities are that this particular English statute referred to will cause some discussion for the moment and then be forgotten, and that it will still be a part of the law code of England in 2031.

POETS AND GOVERNORS
One of the interesting stories of the winter is the news that the governor of New Mexico has appointed Witter Bynner, poet, to his official staff with the rating of colonel.

All governors, so far as we know, have their staffs, and most of them honor various prominent citizens in their respective states by making officers out of them; but this is the first time, to our knowledge, that a poet has been so honored. It looks like a good idea.

Of course, not every state has a poet worthy of the rank of colonel. The modest gold bar of a second lieutenant would be ample for the run of mine versifier, and there are some who would have to be content with a non-com's rating. But the idea is attractive. We are thrilled, for instance, at the thought of dainty Edna St. Vincent Millay becoming a major general.

GRENELL'S BIRTH
On Feb. 28, 1855, Sir Wilfrid Grenfell, an English medical missionary famed for his work in Labrador, was born in Cheshire, England. Educated at Marlborough and Oxford, where he took the degree of M. D., Grenfell studied at the London hospital under Sir Frederick Treves. At his suggestion Grenfell joined the Royal National Mission for Deep Sea Fisheries and for three years cruised with it in the North Sea as medical missionary and there did great work building hospitals, establishing homes and missions for the inhabitants, and organizing industrial schemes. He did similar work in northern Newfoundland. In 1921 King George opened the St. John's Institute at St. John's. In the same year the mission, by the uniting of its English, American and Canadian branches, became the International Grenfell Association, of which Grenfell became superintendent.

IT'S BEEN a lot of fun to go running around complaining how uncomfortable you feel with an overcoat on . . . particularly when you can read how the baseball teams in training down South can't do any work because it's too chilly . . . now we can sit back and wait for that Easter blizzard . . . and Al Capone to get out of jail . . .

The speed limit will probably be set at 50 miles an hour in Wisconsin. Now if some of the Sunday drivers who clog up the roads and who get a thrill out of driving at 20 can only be persuaded to try out the limit, there'll be fewer accidents on the highways this summer.

Refer It to Mr. Wickersham

England is planning another naval parley. It seems that France doesn't like what England wants and England doesn't like what France wants and France won't stop building unless Italy does and everyone is arguing with Mussolini and getting not very far.

Chase us, we're a butterfly.

Chicago begins to look with jealous eyes on New York. It seems that the witness in a vice squad case in Manhattan was mysteriously murdered just before the trial. That, everybody thought, was a Chicago patented process.

Apparently what America needs is a good five dollar bill. Think of the possibilities. Your nickel would be worth just twenty times as much. Prosperity would come back in ten minutes, everybody could play the stock market and win. $wonderful.

The fact that Chicago might lose business for its 1933 World Fair if it doesn't clean house seems to become more and more a reality. Already people in Iowa and Wisconsin have kicked.

And it's from people like these that Chicago hopes to draw its patronage when the fair takes place. The natives certainly won't make it pay.

Sure, there are lots of people in Buffalo who have never seen Niagara Falls.

And, as the vaudeville comedians say, there are a lot of people in Pittsburgh who have never seen the light of day.

Just as our stock had gone up 5-8 of a point, we sit here tearing our hair. The morning paper we saw forgot to list it. Now we don't know whether to buy that Rolls-Royce or sell the silver.

And from the top of today's column to the bottom the weather progressed from cloudy to a heavy snow. Guess the days of kidding Florida are over for a while.

Just Folks

CONTRAST

One thought she wanted diamond rings, Rich opera cloaks and pretty things, Tinctures and perfumes for her hair, And hats and shoes and trinkets fair.

She thought her life would happier be If it were trimmed with luxury, Believing peace of mind is born Of gewgaws fashioned to be worn.

But lived a woman down the street Whose life with jewels was complete, For every sort of trinket known Was hers to wear and hers to own.

And yet she grieved from day to day And would have flung her wealth away From him she'd married to have heard A truly sympathetic word.

Where love and understanding dwell, Though wealth is absent, all is well, But it's hell-fire to sit alone With jewels you're allowed to own.

The Port Edwards Sulphite company had just been organized at Grand Rapids and John McNaughton had been elected vice president.

Eggs were selling at 16 cents per dozen and it was expected they would drop to 14 cents before Easter.

Attorney J. P. Frank left that morning for Wabeno on a brief business visit.

Miss Mae Roblee was on an extended visit with relatives in Milwaukee, Chicago, and Battle Creek, Mich.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

ONCE A LITTLE BOY COUGHED IN THE NIGHT

My boy, writes a young mother, is three years old. He never coughs in the day time, but every night between 12 and 3 o'clock he has a spell of coughing, a real bark. The attacks are very mild and he is a robust child, but I should like to relieve him entirely of these night coughing spasms. I have proved your statement that cold air is soothing and tends to relieve the child. I wonder if this is a kind of croup? If it is, please tell me how to manage croup. (Mrs. S. W. A.)

No, that is not croup, the barking cough may be correctly described as "croupy" because it sounds like the peculiar barking cough of a youngster developing spasmodic croup.

More likely this child's cough is due to enlargement of some lymph nodes (keroids) in the neck, consequent upon infection entering through a lesion of the nose, throat, cleft, or ears. A not uncommon cause of such a cough in a child not long after the child has gone to bed is the irritation of the back of the throat by secretion which drains down from the back of the nose when the child lies on his back. This is an indication for a careful examination of the nose by means of headlight and speculum, and the treatment of whatever little trouble the doctor finds. Often it is a simple chronic rhinitis. Obviously it is not fair to such a child to ply him with alleged cough medicines when he needs to have his nose wiped—by the doctor.

Apparently croup still happens, though I had begun to think croup spasmodic croup had passed into history along with long-legged red flannel underwear. But croup is another story, and readers interested in these historical matters may send a stamped envelope bearing their address and ask for advice about croup if they have anything of the kind in the family.

There is still one other occasional cause of such a barking cough in child or adult, that is worth knowing. Sometime the accumulation of hardened ear wax in a mass or plug in the ear canal irritates a spot on the wall of the canal where a branch of the nerve that supplies the bronchial tubes is distributed in the skin. The irritation is reflexly responsible for spells of harsh coughing, to no purpose. Nature playing a little joke. This is just another good reason for going to the doctor for an examination for any such annoying and persisting trouble. I said "not specialist." Any doctor worth consulting at all is competent to deal with all these things. It is silly, extravagant and too often dangerous to run to a specialist with every little thing, dangerous because so many incompetents are in the specialist racket and such unprincipled, inexperienced, sometimes unprincipled men are likely to perpetrate an operation on you before you realize what it is all about.

The Tinymites

By Hal Cochran

THE elephant's trainer soon came near and said, "What's going on 'round here?" My husband was tickled pink. What have you youngsters done? He likes all lads who treat him right, but, even so, we tie him tight 'cause sometimes he gets rather mad and makes few fellows run."

"Oh, he feels quite all right toward us," said Clowry. "He won't make a fuss. We've fed him lots of peanuts. He was hungry as could be. No doubt that's what he likes us for. I think I'll go and buy some more. I'll bring them back here shortly, if you all will wait for me."

"He's wait a minute," cried the man. "I think he's eaten all he can. It isn't good for him to stuff cause it might make him sick. I'll get a pail of water now. The elephant will show you how he drinks it up with one long swill. It's really pretty slick."

"I'll carry it," we Scouty cried. He rushed up to the keeper's side and took the pail. He shortly had it filled up to the top. It then was set upon the ground. The elephant just reached around and started drinking quickly. Soon he'd taken every drop.

"He wants some more," the keeper said. "One of you Tinies go ahead and fill the pail. We'll wait right here until you bring it back." This time kind Clowry lent a hand, but in the water sulked some sand. Said Scouty, "You will soon find out that common sense you lack."

And he was right. The monstrous beast took one long drink and then released a thundering snort. This scared the bunch and they began to fret. The elephant then raised his trunk and, with the water he had drunk, sprayed Clowry till the stars. It had a simply stunning effect. (The Tinymites meet another zoo inhabitant in the next story.)

A Bystander In Washington

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington — You're doubtless familiar with the scene of two neighbors quarreling over the fence in the backyard.

One gets all "het up" and starts shouting. The other listens for a while, and then tries to say something himself, as he gets started the other breaks in.

You know—just a typical back fence squabble.

Well, the United States senate had a sample of that sort of thing the other day when two of its "neighbors" got into an argument. The "neighbors" were Hefflin and Black of Alabama. And it looked for all the world like a scene that might be enacted in any neighborhood.

The fuss was concerned with Hefflin's desire to have the senate investigate the votes which defeated him for re-election.

And the fiery Senator Tom was a bit peeved because his junior colleague did not share his ardor for having the ballot boxes in Alabama counted again.

"In This Corner"

Get this picture in your mind: Hefflin's desk in the senate chamber is No. 39 on the democratic side of the aisle, in the second row, in the same row, just two seats over, next to the wall, is desk No. 41, occupied by Black. Only one desk separates them—No. 40—at which sits the youthful Dill of Washington.

The two principles are as unlike in their personal appearances and personalities as one could imagine.

Hefflin is robust, dynamic, long-spoken, vociferous — described by some as the "best showman in the senate."

He dresses the part. His cream-colored vests, long frock coats, standing collars and black bow ties mark him as one of the senate's most colorful figures. He is among the best speakers in that body, dauntless in running-fire debate.

Black tells him Black almost the opposite. Of medium height, youthful in appearance (he is only 45), he makes only infrequent remarks on the floor. He usually wears dark blue double-breasted suits, and likes to walk around with his hands thrust deep into his coat pockets. His voice is strong and clear and earnest.

Black Tells Him

Long and loudly had Hefflin insisted that Black come out and say whether he was in favor of ballot boxes in Alabama being seized. Black had listened in silence, gazing around the chamber apparently unconcerned. Finally he was goaded into action by Hefflin's tongue.

Jumping to his feet, he started to tell the senate how he stood. After speaking for several minutes, Hefflin interrupted.

"The senator asked me for a statement," said Black.

"But not for a speech—in my time," snapped Hefflin.

The fracas started. Back and forth words flew—over Dill's desk.

Save Tulips From Frost

Editor Post-Crescent—This having been an exceptional mild winter, there being little frost in the ground, has caused tulips to sprout far ahead of their usual time in this locality. I have noticed some of the early flowering variety sprouted from one to two inches above the surface. The Darwin and breeder tulips, which are of the later flowering type are not so far advanced. I have had many calls from tulip lovers, on what to do to save their tulips for spring blossoming.

Roots having buds on the south side of a building find their tulips quite far advanced and these should have proper care for this time of year. Where they are above the surface, these should be covered with straw. Special care should be taken in covering them. When there is still frost in the ground, the main thing is to keep it there, which will check the growth. For severe cold weather would freeze the tops off. Freezing off the tops would not cause you to lose the bulbs but would rob you of blossoms this spring.

The best time to do this covering is early in the morning or late at night, when the top soil is somewhat frozen. Keeping the ground frost will keep them from sprouting too fast.

Bulbs that have been planted five to six inches deep and not in a sheltered place are not liable to sprout so fast.

HERMAN HOLTZ.

PRaises SANDERS

Editor Post-Crescent — I have watched the Appleton Post-Crescent for several days for an account of a trip of investigation on two local slaughter houses by M. Sanders, City Health Officer of the City of Appleton. Considerable credit must go to Mr. Sanders for this check up, and also the steps taken in this matter in ordering them to be cleaned up before any further use can be made of these places for slaughter of cattle, and other animals.

As a tax payer and citizen of this community I want to congratulate Mr. Sanders for his praiseworthy action in ordering these places to be cleaned up.

Yours for Cleanliness

A group of physicians gave an annual art exhibition in New York recently. Did the admiring spectators open their mouths instinctively and say "Ah?"

A physicians' exhibit is not to be taken too lightly. Some of the medics are probably famed for their iodine paintings.

Andy Mellon, loathe to part with the cash voted for certain appropriations, might, of course, prevail upon Congress to observe Thrift Week.

A professor in an Ohio university says potatoes may yet provide rubber. When the time arrives they'll probably be called inner tubers.

Edna Best, English actress, left Hollywood flat to join her husband in New York. But perhaps that's the Best way.

A "Thrift Week" may mean a lot to some people, but in Scotland it is just another week.

It won't be long now before the first symptoms of love sickness will begin to show; you know, those "dizzy" spells.

A professor asks why it is good times always approach when women's skirts grow shorter. Well, in the old times it meant more hustle and bustle.

Hefflin called Black "a foxy fellow at times." Black said if Hefflin didn't want him to explain further, then he was "satisfied."

Hefflin yelled that he was far from "satisfied," but gave Black no opportunity to explain further.

Black tried to read a telegram on the subject. Hefflin wouldn't let him and proceeded to tell Black "what was in it." And so on—

For all the world like two neighbors rowing over the back fence.

NEENAH ROUTS MENASHA FIVE BY 38-9 COUNT

Losers Offer Little Opposition to Crack Jorgenson Squad

Menasha—Hopelessly outclassed in every phase of the game, the Menasha high school cagers were swamped by the crack Neenah quint, 38 to 9, at Butte des Morts gymnasium Friday evening. With co-captain Becker the only Menasha threat, Jorgenson's men scored almost at will, piling up 19 counters in each half. Neubauer was high point man for the visitors, scoring five field goals and a gift toss for a total of 11 points.

It was Neenah's night in everything but the boxing matches, which were staged by the Menasha high school boxing class and provided the best entertainment of the evening. The Neenah second team romped to an easy 22 to 8 win over the Menasha B squad in the preliminary attraction.

The traditional rivalry between the two teams drew a capacity crowd in spite of the almost obvious outcome of the game, and it felt between the followers of the two cage squads was conspicuously absent.

Hope Fades Rapidly

In spite of Schmidt's pair of goals, another by Neubauer and a gift toss by Bell, Becker's five points for the Calderman game the Menasha fans a gleam of hope in the first quarter. The hope diminished in the second period, however, and continued to dwindle until the final whistle.

A third field goal by co-captain Becker accounted for the only Menasha points in the second quarter while Schmidt, Neubauer, Bell and Johnson added 11 points to the Neenah total, leaving the Menasha quint at the short end of a 19 to 7 count, 19 for Neenah and 7 for Becker.

The third quarter was worse, or better, depending on which side of the boulevard the fans lived. The Caldermen were unable to even work into scoring position while Neubauer, Bell, Johnson and Block tacked another 10 points to the Neenah count.

Fourth Quarter

In spite of the one sided score and considerable fatigue, the fourth quarter was the most hotly contested of the entire tilt. Schmidt, Barnes, Johnson and Block scored 10 points for the visitors, Asmus and Becker tossed successful free throws for Menasha, and the officials were blowing whistles almost all the time. A charity toss for Neenah was necessary to quiet the fans at one point and score keepers were working frantically to keep track of technical fouls, personal fouls, field goals and substitutions. By holding the Caldermen to only two points during the entire second half, the Neenah squad held a 27 point lead at the end of the game. Neenah starting for Neenah with four field goals, the visitors held a comfortable lead in each quarter, were leading 10 to 1 at the half and 22 to 8 at the end of the game. Asmus, Snyder, Leopold and Makofski scored Menasha's 8 points while Patterson, Belsenstein, Fahrtenkrug, Krause and Swenter counted for Neenah.

Four Boxing bouts

Four boxing matches, staged by Menasha high school battlers and directed by D. Demarais, was probably the most entertaining feature on the evening's program. Richard Rendall and George Borenz, lightweights, started the fireworks with a two round bout, but neither battler sustained any great bodily harm.

The second match, between Roy Malchow and Clarence Knauft, fighting at 135 and 135 pounds developed into a fast scrap that provided plenty of entertainment, and the clash between Lloyd and John Damie was easily the best battle of the evening. Both fighters were down in the first round and although Blount appeared to have a slight advantage, a hard left to the chin gave him plenty to think about in the second period.

Lester Arent and Frank Marx entertained in the final bout. Although they both swung hay makers that would probably have been fatal had they landed, little actual damage was done and the scrap ended on comparatively even terms.

The death song which closes the work has been called the most emotional of love songs. Isolda, transfigured with grief, sings her last farewell to her lover and expires on his body. As the song rises to a burst of ecstasy at the end, it suggests that in death the lovers are reunited.

The program will open with a number by Guilmant, the composer who did so much to free the modern organ playing from the bonds of the "churchly style." Life At Home Is Source Of Kin Quarrels

BY ANGELO PATRI

"For the love of Pete, where did you get that rig?"

"Where do you suppose I got it? Doesn't it suit you?"

"It does not. That hat makes you look like a sick monkey. If you took that rat's tail off it, maybe it wouldn't be so bad. It's a sight: No kidding."

"Well, I like it."

"You would?"

"Why don't you attend to your own business. You're not so hot when it comes to dressing yourself. At least my face is clean."

"Who said so? You? Then you're no judge. If a pint of paint makes one girl's face clean, how much will it take to whiteness a fence? You sure do go the limit."

"Of course I'm not as loud as your friend, Marilyn. I'd hate to be the sort you like. The cheaper they are the harder you fall for them."

"Getting me mixed with yourself, aren't you?"

"I'm not going to stay here to be insulted. When father comes home tonight I'm going to tell him what a nice brother I have."

"You needn't. He knows it. What he wants is a nice daughter and that's what he hasn't, yet."

"Mother, why make Bill stop bothering me? He goes out of his way to insult me. I can't speak. I can't put on a new hat I can't move without his saying something insulting. I'm...."

"That's it. Pick on me. I can't open my mouth but you get sore."

"Who wouldn't?"

"The squabble begins afresh. Lucky when there are only two engaged in it. Usually the battle rages with as many participants as there are children, for the first personality that is uttered brings somebody to the defense and the row is on full force."

This ought not to happen. There is one unchangeable law that underlies all social intercourse, that is the bulwark of comfortable living. No unpleasant personal remarks are ever to be uttered. Nobody, sister or brother, mother or father, aunt or uncle, nobody, is to make an unpleasant personal remark. The instant one is made the response meets it and the bitter battle is on. It is easy to start and difficult to settle. It leaves scars that far outlast the occasion.

Train little children to this rule. Teach them that they are to speak with consideration and courtesy to all the members of the household.

That no unkind words are ever to be let loose in the family circle. Set the example yourself. When you cannot speak in kindness, in all gentleness, keep still. Wait until your mood shifts and kind thoughts stimulate you to utterances that soothe and please and uplift.

Brothers and sisters are likely to forget this but watchful teachers and parents will remind them. The way to keep the peace is not to break it. Make no petty personal remarks at any time, about anybody, and you will be safe.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers and the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, inclosing stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

LIFE'S ODDITIES

By George Clark

"Now try to remember this some way--If a customer asks to see the overstuffed, call for me."

Your Birthday

"PISCES"

If March 1st is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:30 a. m. to 9 a. m., from noon to 2 p. m. and from 5 p. m. to 7:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 10:15 a. m. to 11:30 a. m. and from 3 p. m. to 4:45 p. m.

The planetary aspects of March 1st are benign and satisfying. Nothing startling is liable to happen, and the signs present a period of calm and serene contentment, with new friendships formed or old ones renewed.

Children born on this March 1st will be bright and sunny, and this disposition will continue with them through life. They will have special intellectual gifts or accomplishments. They will always, however, be a welcome addition to any good community.

If you were born on March 1st, your horoscope clearly denotes that you are a charming and an attractive person, no matter what your position may be in life. Your frankness, which never borders on rudeness; your sincerity, which is never influenced by circumstances; your appreciation, which never savors of flattery; and your consideration for others, regardless of their status, endear you to one and all.

Life will not reward you in any spectacularly material manner, yet your disposition will prove to be a source of wealth in currency of happiness. You have no outstanding abilities. You are neither smart nor shrewd, nor are you brainy or talented. On the other hand, you are conscientious, industrious, and your integrity is unquestioned, and you will always find a niche in the world that you will be able to fill to the satisfaction of all concerned.

With your disposition, you will, of course, be happy in your work, but your home life will reap the greater benefit from your unselfishness and the steadfast qualities of your character. As husband or wife, and as parent, you will always bring to the family circle a spirit of unvarying fidelity, and when troubles come, yours will be the hand, and yours will be the privilege to straighten them out.

Successful People Born March 1st:

2--Wilford Woodruff -- 4th president Mormon Church.
3--William Dean Howells--author and poet.
4--Chopin--composer.
5--Augustus Saint Gaudens--sculptor.

6--Richard H. Jesse -- educator -- University of Missouri.

"PISCES"

If March 2nd is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:30 a. m. to 9:30 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 3 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 10:45 a. m. to noon and from 5 p. m. to 6:30 p. m.

Astrological influences on this date favor those who are engaged in doing constructive work and it will be an excellent time for negotiations and transactions which require brisk and forceful handling. It cannot be described as a "safe" time for speculation.

Children born on this March 2nd will be blunt, affectionate, and rather indolent. Their natures will be sweet, but their dispositions weak. In order to do any good for themselves, they will have to experience the urge of necessity. So long as they can exist, they will not be very anxious to live.

If you were born on March 2nd, you possess an indomitable spirit, and when there is a "ghost of a chance," never give up until you "give up the ghost." Your horoscope foretells that you will suffer many reverses. These, however, instead of damping your ardor, will only make you more determined to go in and win. Many of your difficulties will be caused by poor vision and the inability to weigh "pros" and "cons." You become imbued with an idea and can only see the successful termination of your efforts and never give a thought to what might happen if the unexpected should occur.

Excessive optimism is your besetting weakness. You have an engaging personality, tolerant views and a generous outlook. Backed as these qualities are with sound knowledge, you could do much in life if you could look upon both sides of the picture and reach an impartial decision. You have great confidence in your own ability to succeed where others fail, but you do not take long enough time to find out why they failed.

Your disposition always charms, and never alienates. Your temper is under control at all times. You never bear a grudge and are charitable--even to those whom, in justice, you could claim to be your enemies. It must be with one born either in the month of December or August, your home life holds out a prospect of considerable happiness, as such a union will bespeak mutual affection and forbearance.

Concerning Mrs. Wilder's work, Bertha R. Palmer, state superintendent of Public Instruction, Bismarck, N. Not only what she gives, but she herself is most worth while."

A. E. Winslow, editor of the Journal of Education, Boston, Mass., after hearing her lectures, commended Mrs. Wilder on her work. The lecture will begin at 8 o'clock Monday evening.

An open card party will be given Saturday, March 14, by the Appleton women's club at Conway hotel. The funds will be used to help lift the $500 mortgage on the clubhouse. Flowering Vines Give Garden Real Drapery

A fence covered with morning glories or scarlet runner beans was a familiar old-time indication of a vegetable garden on the farm. The old idea is worthy of emulation on the city place. A boundary of a fence covered with flowering vines adds a decorative note to the vegetable garden which will bring it into harmony with the ornamental features of the lot.

Morning glories are ideal material for covering wire fences, their twining habit making them take hold of their support at once and soon forming a solid screen of foliage spangled with the handsome blue, rose and white chalice each morning.

The scarlet runner bean with its brilliant blooms and its white variety give other fine material for a vine-draped fence. More brilliant is the cardinal climber, although its foliage is not heavy enough to make the screen furnished by the beans and morning glories. The most striking vine decoration easily grown will consist of the finer strains of Japanese morning glories with their wonderfully colored and formed flowers. They are slower to germinate and not as robust as the common morning glory, but once started making rapid growth.

The hyacinth bean, with purple flowers is another handsome drapery. Most interesting of all and a great delight to the youngsters is the gourd in its numerous varieties and colorings. A gourd fence will furnish a novelty of great interest and the gourds will serve as playthings after the vines have been destroyed by frost. There is no excuse for leaving a bare fence about a vegetable garden with the wealth of annual and perennial vines that may be employed to cover it.

The tall nasturtiums, with a guiding hand to tie them in place, will make a brilliant fence cover and furnish lavish material for cutting for the house all summer. They do not need too rich soil and are one of the easiest of all vines to grow. Their handicap is that they have no means of climbing, either by tendrils or by twining and must be tied in place. They make a long and vigorous growth.

The Story of Sue

MARGERY HALE
© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE group turned as Harry's car came swinging along. He drew up in front of the house and jumped out and only Corinne caught the curious tightening of his lips.

"Hello, old man," Jack called. "Your wife decided to get some publicity this afternoon by doing a fade-out in the bank. And now she insists on stepping out for a gala evening."

Corinne watched Harry closely. Perhaps there would be worry in his eyes. Just a trace to show that he still cared. And maybe there wouldn't be. She turned her head quickly then. In that case it would be better for her not to see. Not to know definitely that Harry was through.

Mabelline was placed in the empty taxicab and sent back to town. Jack and Sue climbed into Jack's car and went swinging down the drive and Corinne saw from the expression in Sue's eyes that she expected everything to be straightened out now. She realized that she was alone with Harry. And he would have to drive her home.

"It was a stupid mistake for them to bring me here," she said. "The last place in the world where I should come. Will you call another cab for me, please?"

"I'll drive you home."

Home! He had used the word in reference to her and had meant some other place by it.

"No, I want to be.....alone. Please, Harry."

Bumping back into town she huddled down in a corner of the cab and watched the taximeter with hard bright eyes, not even knowing that she was looking at it. It seemed to her that she was strung with strange, charged wires that would snap pretty soon. That something must happen to remove the pressure. She couldn't go on like this. She couldn't sit and think and remember. She wanted action! She would get a different kind of a job, one that would give her a chance to work until she was so tired she could sleep. And then waken to work again. The driver stepped on the gas. Suddenly she had an idea. She would drive a taxi-cab. Girls did such things. And she wouldn't have time to think then. She realized that she would have to wait until her father's trial was over.

"But if I do, how will I live? I won't take Harry's money. I can't sponge on Sarah. But I could get a job driving from five in the afternoon until 10 at night, maybe. That would be all right. I'll do it!"

She went home. Sarah wasn't there. That was good, she mused. She could hurry her new stunt through. The lampyants wig and eyelashes came out of her pocket and she brushed them and combed them carefully. She put them on, added more make-up and went down the street to the taxi-cab headquarters, hoping against hope that they needed a driver....and would trust a girl.

Her driver's license was in her pocketbook. When the manager opened his eyes at the name on it, she smiled and explained that she wanted to try out her stunt incognito. She wondered if he would approve. But he was young and a little strange around women, for all his business ability. Corinne knew that she disturbed him, made him ill at ease. At the same time, she attracted him. She smiled sweetly and her voice was softer and appealing. She had to get a job. And these were merely her weapons of appeal. "Well....."

Corinne held her breath as he spoke.

MY NEIGHBOR Says—

To renew willow furniture wash it with white soap and water, scrubbing well with a stiff brush.

Turnips, if too small to peel and cut up, should be boiled whole in their skins, then the skin can be rubbed off. Small turnips cooked in this way are much sweeter and better flavored and there is no waste.

Get a piece of white cloth large enough for your dining table and the leaves are all in and put it on top of your silence cloth and right underneath your tablecloth, oiled side up. When anything is spilled on the cloth it cannot get through and mar the table.

One teaspoon of vinegar added to the fat in which doughnuts are fried will prevent the cakes from absorbing the fat.

Dishes that have become brown and burned from constant baking may be easily cleaned after they have been steeped for a while in borax and water.

DAILY BEAUTY CARE TAKES BUT A LITTLE TIME

ALICIA HART

Everybody knows how much time it takes her to get to work mornings, or how long it takes her to do the housework, if she stays home. But how few women consciously figure on how much time they should devote to beauty in the given day.

Is it, I ask you, worse to spend time fretting because you are afraid your face may be dirty or shiny, and your hair too long and stringy, or to set up a regular regime that may take a total of anywhere from one-half to an hour a day but keeps you calm and peaceful, sure of your good grooming?

Upon waking, don't leap out of bed and begin dashing into your clothes or your bath. Lie there a minute, stretch, like a lazy cat, get fully awake and then arise and easily, without straining yourself, do a few setting-up exercises and steps. If you were to try both ways of getting up and be entirely scrupulous about setting down results, you might be surprised to see how leaping out of bed before you are awake disturbs your whole system and temper. Cats know their secrets of eternal lissness and you can learn a lot from a cat!

The matter of bath and general grooming may not be considered under beauty at all, but health. But to avoid any argument we will say this may take from 15 minutes to a half hour, depending on how much time you have and how careful you are.

It often is more restful in the long run to get up fifteen minutes to a half hour earlier mornings and have a little more time for beauty than it is to sleep later. But not, of course, if you are getting to bed later than you should.

The actual make-up for starting out should be given enough time to get your rouge on right, enough and not too much of it, and your powder dusted and evenly.

Take this morning beauty time, 10 minutes at noon, about 10 minutes in the afternoon and another 10 minutes freshening up for dinner. Add to this 10 or 15 minutes spent at night, brushing your hair, your teeth, getting a bath, cold-creaming. Perhaps you do spend an hour a day. What of it? That leaves 22 hours a day for other things and when you consider the importance to your frame of mind, health and pursuit of happiness that beauty has an hour is not too much. Even a half hour daily, devoted persistently day in and day out to beauty, brings its rich reward in continued good looks and a pleasant outlook upon life that comes to those who are popular.

WE WOMEN

By Virginia Vane

Dear Miss Vane: I only wish there were a lot of other girls in the world as happy as I am. I have found the only man in the world and we love each other dearly. We are both sensible enough to know what real love is and there is no doubt in either of our minds. We are keeping our love a secret however, as I feel sure my parents would oppose the match if they knew about it. We are planning to elope next summer. My man wants very much to tell my father but I am against this idea. Will you tell me whether you think I am wrong in proposing to keep everything secret? It is our one problem.

MARGE.

Even though your love be true and deep and seemingly unaffected by outside circumstances, the first months of married life will bring their own problems. Even the most terribly in love people in the world find that there are adjustments and compromises to be made.

And those who elope find that there are more complications than they had expected which is the main reason why I should advise you against an elopement.

To begin with, you love your parents, though at present your feeling for them is rather lost sight of, because you're concentrating so entirely on your great love. But actually you probably have a very deep affection for them, and if you hurt them with your marriage, you are bound to suffer for it sooner or later.

If you return to your new home, conscious that your mother and father are viewing you with some disapproval, not only because you have gone against their wishes, but because you have hurt them deeply you will be far from comfortable. Even your great happiness will not obliterate the fact that you want your parents' love and support.

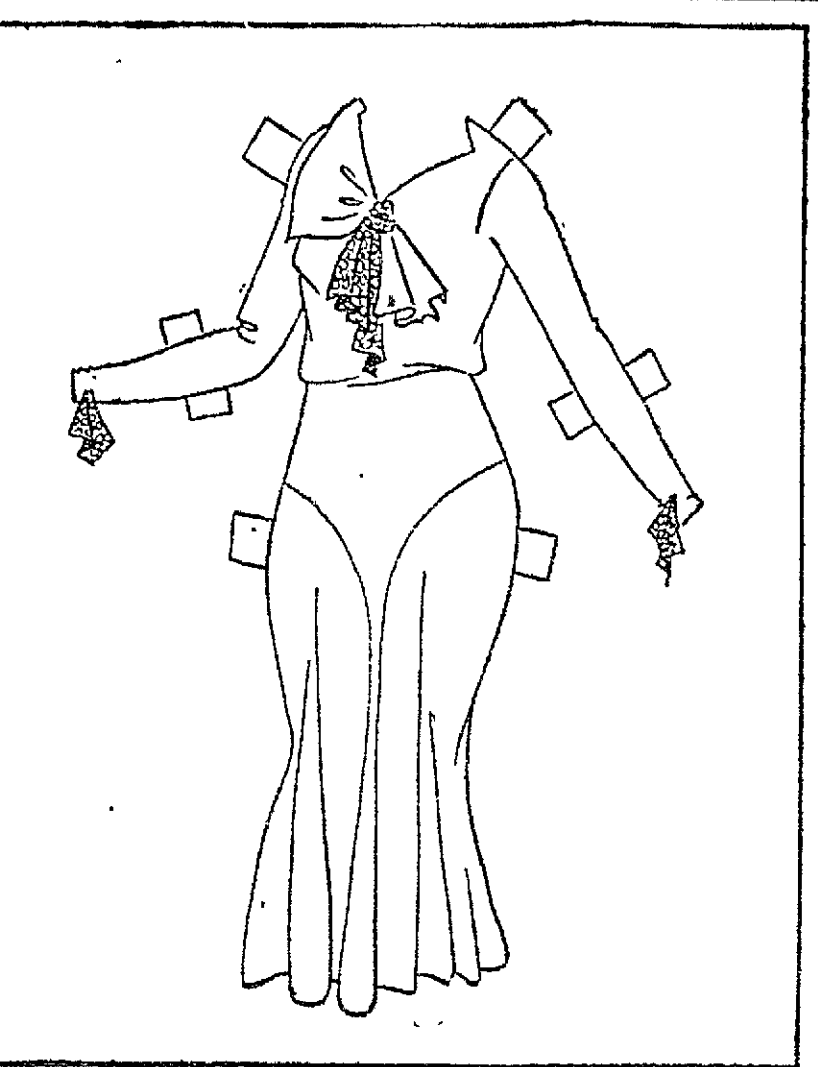

Also if you let your man carry you off in this clandestine fashion you put him in the wrong position. It's going to take your father a long time to forgive a boy who would do this to his daughter while his back was turned. There will be endless misunderstandings, and hurt feelings to be got over with, until the new scandal is received into the bosom of the family.

Let your future husband state his intentions to your family. Then he has at least done the honorable thing, and any steps you find necessary to take in the future will not seem so sneaky and dishonest. The more consideration you show your family, the more peaceful and happy will be your early married life.

LOLA: Perhaps you're trying to be too smart all the time. You know that you are bright and witty and the temptation to be funny is very strong when one is young and anxious for popularity.

But actually that kind of humor makes a bad impression and if it is overdone, people who laugh at you at first, and upon reflection, that you are not nearly as funny as you seem to be, and they would not care to have you for a friend. You really want to feel the happiness of your family even though they may not have you in the same way as you do. Or you can do the things that are really fun and interesting, and you'll very soon learn to check the rather too

"Boots" Wears This Frock At Afternoon Tea

Here's another costume for "Boots," the lively heroine of the comic strip, "Boots and Her Buddies." Of course "Boots," who is always up-to-the-minute in matters of style, needs an afternoon dress. We think Martin, the artist who draws "Boots and Her Buddies," provided an unusually attractive outfit. Watch for another costume for "Boots" Monday.

KAUKAUNA FIVE WINS, 20 TO 18, AT TWO RIVERS

Coach Little's Team Is Forced to Play One Overtime Period

Kaukauna—Forced to play an overtime period, Kaukauna high school cagers were rewarded for their long trek over to Two Rivers Friday evening when they downed the high school team of that city by a score of 20 and 18. Kaukauna had trailed until the middle of the third quarter, when it took a small lead that was tied in the last few seconds of play.

The game opened with Stanul, Two Rivers guard, hooping a short shot, and Spiering, Two Rivers center, added a gift shot. Vanlieshout netted a field goal and Koch, Kaw center, annexed a free toss to tie the score at three all. The two teams played rather evenly in the remainder of the quarter, with Two Rivers leading 10 to 7 at the end of the period.

During the second period both teams tightened their defense and neither team was able to get a field goal. Stanul took two free shots which were good, but Dix and Farwell also added one each and the half closed 12 to 9 for Two Rivers.

With Captain Paschen, Kaw forward, aided by Koch, center, doing the scoring the locals took a 15 to 12 lead during the third period. The Two Rivers five was unable to score in the final seconds of the frame and Klinkenberg, Kaw forward, hooped a long shot, which was the first long try the Two Rivers team had taken, ending the period 15 to 14 for the locals.

The final frame was a rather hectic one with the Kaws adding five points and the Two Rivers squad adding six. Paschen, after adding three points to the Kaw total, was removed from the game on fouls. Schwendeman substituted and play was resumed, and at this point of the game the score stood 18 to 16 in the Kaws' behalf. The Kaws made a poor attempt at stalling and lost the ball to Krey, Two Rivers forward, who hooped a field goal as the game ended. In the overtime period Two Rivers lost the tipoff and Schwendeman hooped the winning basket ending the game 20 to 18.

March To Be Busy Month, Activities Program Shows

In old Roman days the Ides of March portended disaster. Today the Ides of March, or March 15, means just one thing—call it disaster if you will—and that's the income tax.

What with the primary election, the filling of the income tax, the deadline for auto licenses, and a full calendar of musical, dramatic, and athletic events, March is going to be an active month.

The last day for filing the income tax and for sporting the new auto license falls on March 15, the primary election will be on St. Patrick's day, March 17, and the spring opening will be on March 12, 13 and 14. The Boy Scouts will hold their annual court of honor on Sunday, March 1, and their drive for funds will be held March 9, 10 and 11. The third inter-club forum dinner will be held on March 16, with Adam Poulter, Boston, Mass., of the Beacon Boys' bureau, as the speaker.

Claire Dux, famed soprano, will complete the Community Artist series program on March 3, the Lawrence college glee club will sing its home concert on March 23, an all-college play will be given at Memorial chapel on March 20 and an all-college dance on March 14. The junior class play of Appleton high school, "Under Twenty," will be given March 2, and all high school intramural debates will be held during the coming month.

Editor T. S. Speak
Harrison Howe, editor of the national chemistry publication, will inspect the Lawrence Institute of Paper chemistry, the paper mills in the Fox River valley, and address a meeting sponsored by the Northeastern section of the American Chemical society on March 9. The fourteenth anniversary of the local Rotary club will be observed on March 8. St. Patrick's day will mean dozens of programs and card parties.

In athletic the coming month will mark the opening of the Blits bowling tournament in this city and the end of the basketball season. The college season will close with a game at Northfield, Minn., on Monday, March 2, and the high school season will end at Marinette on March 12. Sometime during the month the district basketball tournament, in which about 12 towns in this vicinity will participate, will be held at Neenah. Appleton high school will play Sheboygan here on March 6, on March 3 the Western Printers of Racine, a professional team, will play the Miller Cords at the Armory, and on March 19, 20 and 21 the Northeastern Wisconsin Amateur basketball tournament will be held at the Y. M. C. A. A Legion amateur boxing card is scheduled for March 12 at the Armory.

Last but not to be sneezed at, the coming month holds a Friday the Thirteenth.

PICTURE ROMANCE OF JENNY LIND

Grace Moore, Opera Star, Makes Her Initial Screen Appearance

The romance of the life of Jenny Lind, world-famous Swedish opera singer, is the theme of the first screen appearance of Grace Moore. Metropolitan opera star, in "A Lady's Morals." The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starring vehicle will open Monday at the Elite Theatre for 3 days.

In the new picture, which Sidney Franklin, remembered for "The Last of Mrs. Cheney" and other hits, directed, Miss Moore appears as the singer, and sings many brilliant song numbers ranging from grand opera to popular ballads in the role. The first song Carrie Jacobs Bond has composed for the screen, "Lovely Hour," is one of them. Other numbers by Oscar Straus and Herbert Stothart, selections from "Norma" and "Daughter of the Regiment" are others.

The scenario was written by Hans Kraly and Claudine West from Dorothy Farnum's story, with dialogue by John Meehan and Arthur Richman.

The cast is an elaborate one. Reginald Denny plays the composer-lover, Brander, and Wallace Beery is seen as a reincarnated P. T. Barnum in the sequences showing Jenny Lind's debut in New York under the management of that brilliant showman.

Jobyna Howland appears as Jenny Lind's amusing companion, and Gus Shy in the comedy role of Olaf. Others in the cast are Gilbert Emery, George Marion, Giovanni Martinelli, Paul Forcast, Joan Standing, Mavis Villiers, Bodd Rossing and Judith Vosselli.

Old Comrades Quarrel

Noah Beery, Myrna Loy and Warner Baxter in a scene from Renegades the all talking drama of the fighting Foreign Legion, at the Elite Theatre today and Sunday.

FIERCE DESERT DEVILS SEEN IN "RENEGADES"

Four comrades—a French officer fleeing from the spectres of a past, a burly German, an aristocratic Russian and a hard-boiled American—none of them a credit to his country—all hiding the bitter memories that drove them into the last refuge, the French Foreign Legion—rebelling of discipline—but loyal to each other, if to no one else—these are the "Renegades."

In the picture of that name, at the Elite Theatre today and Sunday the adventures of this queer quartet and their joint battle with the treacherous woman spy who had betrayed their leader, form the plot on which a strikingly vivid and breathless portrayal of Legion life has been based.

Warner Baxter plays the leading role of the ex-officer, Gregory. Gaye and George Cooper as his companions and Myrna Loy as the woman in the case. Directed by Victor Fleming, who made "Common Clay," "Renegades" is a picture notable for its realism and swift action. It is an adaptation by Jules Furthman of Andre Armandy's novel, "Les Renegats," and the millions who appreciated the dramatic quality of Fleming's previous offering are said to be eagerly awaiting the initial showings of this Fox movie.

Edward G. Robinson Has Lead in Powerful Drama of Underworld

With a superb cast and realistic background, "Little Caesar" opens a three day engagement at Warner's Appleton theatre with a midnight preview tonight. This film with Edward G. Robinson in the title role is a powerful drama of the notorious underworld of a certain great American city, with all the actual trimmings and miscellaneous killings which play a part in those circles of society.

Director Mervyn LeRoy, who has many admirable productions to his credit, has truly produced a masterpiece in "Little Caesar."

Edward G. Robinson, known for other magnificent gangster characterizations, gives a splendid performance, playing the role of Rico, "Little Caesar." The story deals with the rapid and spectacular rise to crookdom leadership of this fiery individual, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., as a pal of Rico's, really wishes to quit this life of crime and go back to cafe dancing with his partner, the charming Glenda Farrell, with whom he is madly in love, but Rico stands in his way and will not permit his reformation. He always yearns for bigger pickings, he goes from a small town to the big city and joins up with a "mob," bringing Joe Massara (Doug Fairbanks) with him, much against Joe's wishes. And in the big town Rico fights his way from a lowly gunman to the leadership of the entire underworld.

"KEPT HUSBANDS" IS MODERN FILM

Picture Offers Solution to Problem Facing Many Young Persons

"Kept Husbands," shown Sunday at the Fox theatre, offers the modern solution to a problem that faces a large number of married couples who are drifting apart. And it illustrates in a simple, practical way, how a rich woman and a poor man can compromise the difference in social positions and weld their lives into wedded happiness. Young people who are contemplating marriage would do well to see this enlightening drama, and those who are already married can profit from its lesson. "The newest rights of women and one of the most popular, most frequently exercised, is the—shall we say purchase?—of a husband who is on the market because he is poor," she adds. "The poor-man-rich-girl combination does not occur solely because poor men are the only ones in the market for rich girls. Other men are 'purchasable,' but the rich girl prefers the right sort of poor man because, generally speaking, he is unspoiled. The story is about a young woman, the daughter of a multi-millionaire steel man, who falls in love with, and later marries, one of her father's employees who earns $45 a week. By keeping cool heads on their shoulders they work out the problem to a satisfactory conclusion in a way that is replete with interest and entertainment. "Kept Husbands," an original story by Louis Sarecky, has an exceptionally strong supporting cast as well as a novel and punchy plot. Supporting Miss Mackaill are Joel McCrea, Clara Kimball Young, Bryant Washburn, Mary Carr, Ned Sparks and half a dozen other favorites. Lloyd Bacon directed the picture.

NOTED PERSONS DON'T FORGET OLD FRIENDS

"Do people who become famous forget their old home town friends?" "No," exclaims Mr. O. D. Harris, heating and ventilating engineer of the high school at Appleton, Wis. "Not Edna Ferber nor Henry Ford at least," explained the 30 year old engineer who despite his advanced age is active in his work. "Mr. Herbert H. Helble, principal of the high school and myself were in doubts recently as to whether Henry Ford would write to him or Edna Ferber to me." "Miss Ferber was formerly a neighbor of mine and Mr. Helble knew Henry Ford before the latter became a millionaire motor car manufacturer. "We decided to settle our doubts by writing to them. Mr. Helble re-

HAINES IMITATES RADIO CELEBRITIES

Noted Actor to Appear Here Next Week in "Remote Control"

Amos 'n' Andy, Floyd Gibbons, Walter Damrosch, Graham McNamee and other radio stars have nothing on William Haines as he appears in his latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer talkie, "Remote Control," next Thursday, Friday at the Elite Theatre. In the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture of the New York stage hit, Haines plays the role of an announcer and one-man staff of a defunct radio station, filling all the "acts" by himself and doubling for all performers on the program. From all reports the new Haines vehicle supplies that "something different" which is the ingredient of all screen successes, being a combination of comedy and melodrama so that the audience finds itself in the unusual situation of laughing one moment and sitting on the edge of its seats another. The plot revolves about a number of bank robberies which occur simultaneously with the nightly broadcasting of a series of clairvoyant readings given by a mysterious Professor Kruger. How Haines as the manager of the broadcasting station becomes involved in the crimes and subsequently traces them to the perpetrators makes up the extremely baffling story. A clever cast supports the star, including Charles King, who sings the song hit of the production, "Just a Little Closer." Mary Donnan, in the feminine lead; John Miljan, in his usual villainous capacity; Polly Moran as the droll expert on beauty talks; J. C. Nugent, Edward Nugent, Wilbur Mack, James Donlan, Edward Brophy, Warner P. Richmond and Russell Hopton.

ceived a friendly reply from Mr. Ford and I a letter from Edna Ferber."

The letter from Edna Ferber, who is the author of "Chimarron," which will be shown at the Fox theatre, Appleton, Wis., follows.

"Dear Mr. Harris: How delighted I was to get a letter from you; And what a wonder you are to be working at eighty-one. But then, I hope I shall be, too, when I am your age. But I think that people of your generation—yours, and Mrs. Harris's, and my mother's—are made of stronger, more enduring stuff than my generation. Anyway, my hat is off to you. My regards to you and to Mrs. Harris.

Sincerely,
(Signed) EDNA FERBER."

TOBIN AND NAGEL STARRING IN DRAMA

"Free Love" Will Be Shown at Appleton Theatre Next Week

"Free Love," a tremendously human story of the happiness and heartaches of modern marriage, which features Genevieve Tobin and Conrad Nagel opens at Warner's Appleton Theatre on Wednesday. Based on the stage play, "Half God's," by Sidney Howard, "Free Love," is one of the most talked-of pictures of the year, possessing as it does, a strong appeal to all. It is the story of a young couple, financially comfortable who drift perilously close to the reef of the divorce court through the wife's lack of consideration for her nagging petulance. Just what a husband, madly in love with a wife of this type should do has long been a problem with which divorce courts and families have had to deal and it is claimed that "Free Love" presents an entirely new angle on this subject. Without exception, critics throughout the country who have seen the production previewed have been unlimited in their praise of both the cast and of the story.

THE CRIME IN THE DUTCH GARDEN

Chapter 23
UNMASKED MURDERERS
THE song went on—the song in Duckworth's powerful voice—"Roses of memory, roses of September." Yet he was not in the room, nor was there any one playing. Richmond stood for a moment, amazed as his eyes took in the scene.

In the drawer of Evelyn's desk there stood a graphophone, used while its owners were busy in their deeds of evil.

"Mrs. Dalton, where is your husband?"

With a cry of terror, Evelyn shrank into the corner.

"Guard her, Richmond. I know where he is. I will fetch him."

He strode back into the darkness and re-traced his steps to the Dutch garden. He soon returned. With him came Donald Wade and between them they carried the limp, corded figure of the singer, Lionel Duckworth, or, as he was more correctly called, Lionel Dalton. During the few minutes of Jimmie's absence the bridge players, startled by the commotion, had deserted their game. They stood, an amazed group, while Richmond guarded the girl who had collapsed into a chair. The graphophone had ended its song and was scratching on unheeded.

Jimmie and Donald deposited their prisoner on the floor. Jimmie turned to the little company of friends.

"This is the man," he said, "who killed Miss Annabelle Querding. He also poisoned Edward Green, putting by his side a confession to that first crime. Tonight he sought to take a third life so that the truth about the others should not be known. It might have been hard to prove his guilt, but I laid a trap, and he fell into it."

No one replied. The only human sound was a moan from the girl in the chair.

"In the Dutch garden you will find a dummy figure dressed in my clothes. This man pushed over the stone image on it, just as he did when Miss Querding sat in the other seat."

"Two weddings have been announced tonight, Marjorie married Captain Stirling, but her sister Evelyn married Lionel Duckworth three months ago. They told me no one but planned to kill Miss Querding to get her wealth."

"Their method was simple. There are graphophone records of Duckworth's voice. They said they detested such machines, but had one nevertheless. They would enter the room and he would sing one song. Then, at its conclusion, the graphophone started another while he crept out to do his evil deed. Those outside would swear he was singing all the time. Being that certain doorway, his wife would await his return, the room door meanwhile being locked. To reach the Dutch garden, throw over the figure and come back was the work of a few minutes. Then at his return the graphophone would be hidden and his own voice would take up the song."

As he paused, there were moans from the two accused, but the others remained silent, gazed by what Jimmie was telling them.

To told of his proof that Green had been poisoned and related how he had informed Evelyn of this discovery, observing her alarm at his words. She had received the news at Green's death and was happy at the termination of her fears that he might recover, repudiate the confession and deny his suicide attempt, but Jimmie's disclosure stirred fresh fears, and when he led her to believe that he had told no one else her fatal plan was born.

"I said that I would sit in the Dutch garden tonight beneath that other stone figure and wait for Richmond. I knew she would tell her husband and figured that they would attempt to remove me. The party I suggested was to bring together those under suspicion. When Duckworth threw the figure on what he thought was my head, we seized him. You know the rest."

But Richmond's curiosity was not satisfied, as Jimmie learned next morning when the superintendent called on him at the Wade home.

"I'd like to know what first made you suspect Lionel and Evelyn, and how you guessed they had a graphophone."

"If Duckworth hangs," said Jimmie bringing out a small shining object from his pocket, "it will largely be because of this."

"A graphophone needle!" exclaimed Nancy.

"Yes. That first day in the young ladies' room I noticed this on the carpet and picked it up. Then I thought it strange that there was no graphophone in the house. When we heard the stories of those in the house I was struck by the general agreement that Lionel and Evelyn were busy in that room with their singing. I saw at once how a graphophone would answer all requirements of the case. Real singing at first, then a record turned on while the singer slipped out for a few moments. Then real singing again. I could see it was possible, but you cannot say more of it than that."

"I thought you were worrying about the car at the bottom of the garden," observed Donald.

"I was. While that factor remained unaccounted for, it was impossible to pin one's faith finally to any definite theory. Green, Gresham, Netherton, Vincent, Marjorie—there was suspicion against each of them, but I was not satisfied with the case against any. I felt—we all felt—that Marjorie and Netherton were keeping something back, and while the mystery remained as to Stirling's car, doubt was inevitable. At the same time I kept my other theory in mind. I asked Duckworth what, as a singer, he thought of graphophones. He condemned them heartily, and Evelyn, with just a shade of excessive warmth, said she would never have one in the house."

"There wasn't one when we searched for the will," said Richmond. "If there had been I think I should have noticed it. I went through the contents of the desk."

"It was in a war that is so. Until yesterday my case was not complete. Even then it fell far short of absolute proof," he said, smiling at Richmond, "and you had already shown me you would take a lot of convincing. I was able to demonstrate that Edward Green had never written that confession and had never attempted suicide."

"But that was a very different thing from showing who had killed him or Miss Querding. Evelyn and Duckworth acted last evening exactly as I anticipated they would. It is entirely due to that that their guilt is so clearly established." (Copyright, 1930, J. B. Lippincott Co.)

In Monday's concluding installment Jimmie shows the real significance of the face at the window.

Increased entries have boosted the prize list so it will be well over $4,000, according to Sarto S. Balliet, secretary of the club. Besides the prizes and raffles which are awarded for good bowling, the league will have an opportunity to win good fellowship prizes. Forty per cent of the prize fund goes to good fellowship.

"SIS" BEAUPRE LEADS WESTERN PRINTERS TO WIN OVER CORDS

Appleton Bears Beat Little Chute Cagers in Preliminary, 23-12

BY HAROLD C. FRANK
SHOWING signs of fatigue and weariness after a strenuous week of basketball games, the Miller Cords, Appleton professional caging squad went down to defeat at the hands of the Western Printer aggregation from Racine by a score of 23 to 12.

The local aggregation "was forced to play defensive ball throughout most of the first half, while the strong Racine quintet sailed along with ease sinking ringers in rapid succession to pile up a lead which it maintained throughout the fracas. The Cords rallied in the second half and both teams fought each other to a standstill. The final half took on the aspect of a cross between a football game and wrestling match as the players high-dived, leaped and jumped over each other in an effort to gain possession of the ball.

"Tuffy" Lutz, referee was kept busy during the final period calling fouls and although 13 were checked, no one was retired from his team for roughing it for a count of four persons.

Seventh Game
Notwithstanding the fact that they were playing their seventh successive game in seven days the old Viking trio composed of "Zeke" Rummel, Jerry Slavic and Frank Schueller functioned in its usual style and the husky Racine cagers were kept busy keeping their eye on the ball and the fantastic maneuvers of the three.

Slavic started the scoring in the first five or six seconds of play when he sent the ball spinning through the hoop for the first marker. Eilers, stocky left forward of the Racine team, followed with another counter a few seconds later and the fight was on.

The down-state squad then rushed the Appleton quintet off its feet and Beaupre, former Badger cager expert, sank a short shot as the Printers took the lead.

Another field goal by Eilers and the Printers then caught a series of personal fouls called on both sides. Beaupre tripped Rummel and the fast little Cord made it good for one point. Schueller sought revenge and upset Eilers who went sprawling all over the floor. He also made good the try for a point.

Fouls Galore
Another "nigger pile" in the center of the floor and Beaupre had given the Cords another gift shot. Shortly afterwards, Schueller repeated and received another black mark in back of his name.

Slavic led the scoring for the Appleton team with four field goals, while Beaupre was high man for the Printers with three field goals and three gift shots.

The first half ended with the Racine aggregation leading by a score of 13 to 12, and at the end of the third 10 minute period the lead had increased and the tally sheet registered 25 to 12.

The preliminary game was played between the Appleton Bears and a Little Chute quintet, the local aggregation winning easily by a score of 23 to 12. At the end of the initial period the locals were ahead 4 to 1, while at the end of the half they led 9 to 3. The end of the third period found their lead increased and the score read 17 to 7.

Zimdars led the scoring for the Bears with three field goals and one free throw, while Lamers of the Little Chute team was high man with four field goals and two free throws.

STEVENS POINT PEDS DEFEATED BY STOUT

Stevens Point —(P)—Stout Institute's basketball team made it two straight over Stevens Point State teachers' college team here last night by winning 23 to 20. The lead swung continuously. Stout went ahead 5 to 0 in the first few minutes of play, but the point was leading 11 to 9 at the half. Scoring in the first few minutes of the second half gave Stout the margin.

River Falls —(P)—After a slow start, River Falls teachers humbled Eau Claire Teachers 41 to 21 in a Peds conference basketball game here last night. River Falls led 19 to 9 at the half.

Milwaukee —(P)—Coming from behind a 27 to 19 count in the last nine minutes of a rough game here last night, the Oshkosh State teachers college caged squad nosed out Milwaukee State teachers 33 to 23. The half-time score was 17 to 13 in favor of the Milwaukeeans.

WOLVERINE CAGERS BATTLE WISCONSIN AT MADISON TONIGHT

Win Over Ohio State Monday Indicates Meanwell Team Has Power

MADISON —Fanned by the Badgers surprising victory over Ohio State Monday night, interest in the coming basketball games of Coach Walter E. Meanwell's University of Wisconsin squad is flaming again among the team's supporters and a capacity crowd is expected when the Badgers face the University of Michigan five at the Field House here Saturday night.

Any game with a Michigan team always holds keen interest for a Wisconsin crowd and if the Badgers midlets can repeat their work of Monday night, it is no longer considered beyond reason to hope for an upset Saturday night. Michigan naturally runs a heavy favorite because of the comparative ease with which the Wolverines "took" the Badgers, early in the season, when Meanwell still had his aces—Paul and Chmielewski.

Requests coming in from Milwaukee, Janesville, Beloit, Wausau and other Wisconsin cities for tickets for tonight's battle with Michigan, point to revival of interest in the Badgers.

One of the pleasing features of Wisconsin's victory over Ohio State was the throwing of Ray Wickman and Chester Inman at center. Wickman displayed an aggressiveness which had hitherto been lacking in his play and which, he keeps it, will make him a valuable factor in the two remaining games. The fact that it led to his leaving the game early for four personal fouls was probably more than offset in Coach Meanwell's mind by the satisfaction over his showing some real fire in his play.

Inman, who took his place, carried on nicely, scoring once from the field and sinking one free throw. He is a husky sophomore, 6 feet 2 inches tall, who, because of his compact build had not previously been able to fit into the teamwork. For a man playing his first conference game the big boy showed a world of promise. He was surprisingly cool, handled the ball well and did some neat work in going after rebounds, indicating that in him and Wickman, Coach Meanwell is now better off at center than he has been at any time this season.

Cats Need One Victory
Chicago —(P)—Needling one more victory to come into possession of its first Western basketball championship, Northwestern will go after it tonight at Ohio State.

The Wildcats have won nine of their ten Big Ten games and tonight's engagements should provide the needed triumph, although the Buckeyes have been hard to beat at home. Minnesota, which until last week was right up in the running for the title, will meet Purdue at LaFayette and a defeat for the Gophers would give Northwestern the title, regardless of the outcome of the clash at Columbus.

Illinois will try for its sixth straight against Iowa at Champaign. The fifth game on the bill will be at Chicago where Indiana meets the Maroons.

Joe Eitz, Milwaukee, knocked out Art Wolschub, Racine, in the first round of their Milwaukee district fight. In the 115 pound class, Emilio Evans, Waukegan, moved into the championship round by beating John Drager, Oak River, in three rounds.

Walter Cappel, West Allis, knocked out the heavyweight champion of the Milwaukee district, Frank Weyenberg, Appleton, in another three round go.

Bulldog bowlers found themselves with a two game lead in C. O. F. league standings with the completion of regular bowling on the Elk alleys this week. The team copped two games and stayed in front of the Setters who garnered but one.

Ray Doh's 182 was instrumental in giving the Bulldogs their first win and in the second game he again aided the cause with a 154. The third and last game saw him crop to 142 and with G. Theiss getting a mere 114, the Terriers pounded to a victory as A. Stogbauer led the way with a big 200. Doh's 518 series was high for the leaders. A. Stogbauer's 162, 191, 205—558 for the Terriers.

H. Otto rolled 196, 199, 167—562 for the Setters but his efforts counted for little when the team lost two games. G. Maul's 123 helped bring about the first defeat and the 62 to 0 handicap resulted in the second one. J. Doerfler paced the Setters in the one game they did win. G. Maul had a 206, J. Doerfler a 202 and a 533 series.

Only one 200 score was turned in by the Spitz team as it dropped two games to the Shepherds who failed to click into the 200 circle but who pounded along with some steady knocking.

The Greyhounds copped three straight from the Pointers who turned in a 200 score in the third game.

HORTONVILLE WINS FIRST PLAYOFF GAME

Beats Reedsville 30 to 21 in Series to Decide Little 9 Champ

Hortonville—The first of a series of three games to decide the championship of the Little Nine conference was won by Hortonville in a fast and furious tussle with Reedsville Friday evening by a score of 30 to 21. The Hortonville aggregation won the western division championship while the Reedsville quintet walked off with the eastern division title.

The second game of the series is to be played at Reedsville and the final tilt will be staged on a neutral floor, probably at Kimberly.

The battle last night was a rough affair, three players being retired for committing four personal fouls each. Two Reedsville players, W. Krueger and M. Krueger were fired from the game for unnecessary roughness.

Peterson, Green Bay referee and Pickett, Appleton umpire, experienced considerable trouble during the game due to the roughness of the affair. In addition to landing a rough group of players the referee was subjected to a deluge of bores and hisses from the Reedsville sidelines.

Diester, Hortonville left forward led the scoring for his team with five field goals and three free throws, while Mutchelsky led the Reedsville team with five field goals and three gift shots.

NEW YORK HOLDS UP PURSES OF KING TUT AND BILLY PETROLLE

Suspicion Aroused When Fargo Express K. O.'s Tut in Fourth Round

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Staff Writer
NEW YORK —(P)—One of the few really spectacular battles seen this indoor season was under investigation by the New York state athletic commission today.

The boxing socks cocked a somewhat suspicious eye in the Garden last night as Billy Petrolle floored his arch-rival, Henry Tuttle, after King Tut, three times before knocking him out in the fourth round of their ten round return scrap. When it was all over, Commissioner John J. Pheasant ordered the purses of both fighters held up pending an investigation by the New York state athletic commission today.

The boxing socks cocked a somewhat suspicious eye in the Garden last night as Billy Petrolle floored his arch-rival, Henry Tuttle, after King Tut, three times before knocking him out in the fourth round of their ten round return scrap. When it was all over, Commissioner John J. Pheasant ordered the purses of both fighters held up pending an investigation by the New York state athletic commission today.

"I don't care to say anything about it now," said Commissioner Pheasant. "I will say that it looked to me to be the sort of a fight that deserves a little investigation. Our action speaks for itself."

Tut himself was a patient in the Poughkeepsie hospital where he was taken after the bout for observation. Friends said he had suffered an attack of appendicitis and that an operation might be necessary.

Fourteen thousand persons, the largest Garden crowd of the season, turned out to see the bout.

Not to be caught napping twice in a row, Petrolle fought cautiously through the first round which went to Tut by a wide margin. But Petrolle began to gain confidence in the second round. Mid-way in this session, Billy landed one fairly heavy blow on the king's head and he bounced to the canvas and stayed there for nine. Petrolle hammered the Minnesota slugger all over the ring in the third round and the King offered little resistance. The cynical lads up in the galleries raised a mild chorus of bores as Tut reeled to his corner at the end of the round.

The fourth round had just opened when the blow that possibly led to the commissioner's action was delivered. Petrolle, Jimmy McLarnin into virtual helplessness with his left hooks, started one from the floor that barely grazed Tut's chin. The King, absent-mindedly, perhaps, sat down and took a count of nine. When he arose, Petrolle flailed him with one left after another and finally the Indianapolis blonde went down and stayed there.

"Bang" Billy's victory evened his score with Tut, at three victories apiece. Petrolle weighed 130, Tut, 115.

Freeman placed 16 has been ill and is now regaining his strength. General John W. Clinch, president of the N. B. A., advised Tommy Freeman, manager of the titleholder, that it would be necessary for him to post a forfeit as guarantee that a suitable challenger would be taken on within a reasonable time.

STOCK MARKET REVIVES AFTER EARLY SLUMP

Rail Shares Which Bolstered Prices Last Year Serve as Ballast

Associated Press Financial Editor
New York (AP)—The rail shares, which pulled the stock market up from the low levels of last December, dragged it down today, but support appeared in the financial dealings, and much of the loss was recovered.

Drops of 1 to 5 points in the earlier issues were accompanied by numerous declines of 1 to 4 in other sections of the list, particularly the utilities, but the principal industries were well supported, and a few closed with small gains.

The rails had made little upward progress during the last month, which has seen such vigorous advances in the utility and industrial divisions, and with the built of the market, the operating income reports now in, and in the main disheartening, the close of the month found this group susceptible to bear selling. The list as a whole closed irregularly lower, with a somewhat heavy tone, and transfers for the two-hour session aggregated 1,700,000 shares.

New York Central was a heavy feature, with its report for January showing net of only $1,327,100 against $5,009,582 in the like month of 1930. The stock dropped more than 5 points, but closed off only a little more than 3 net. Not operating income for the first 67 roads reporting for January shows a shrinkage of 37.3-10 per cent from the like period of last year.

New Haven dropped 3, but recovered all but a fraction. Baltimore and Ohio regained half of an extreme loss of 3. Rails closing a point or more lower included Erie, Pennsylvania, Chesapeake and Ohio, and Chicago and Northwestern, while Norfolk and Western dropped 5.

Other shares closing about a point or more down included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Standard of California, Westinghouse, Sears, and Pullman, Auburn lost 2.

The local traction was strong features, both Interboro and Brooklyn-Manhattan gaining 3 points. General Railway Signal gained 2, and Paramount, American Smelting and Anaconda closed up about a point. General Electric, Radio and American Telephone were up fractionally at the finish. Speculation for the rise was pressed forward in Columbia Graphophone, which rose 1/4 to a new high for 1931.

Coppers were influenced by expectations of a general increase in metal prices next week, when one producer already quoting 10 cents a pound, up 3. Steels were somewhat sluggish in view of an estimate indicating that operations in the Youngstown area will be reduced from 50 to 48 per cent of capacity next week.

The weekend business and trade reviews reported only moderate or slight gains during the past few days, with business reaching the season of its usual peak activity. Stock traders were inclined to tread cautiously until the trends of March become more clearly defined.

After advancing vigorously for two weeks, the market has been under pressure more than half of the time during the past week, although vigorous bullish activity has been pressed forward in selected issues.

LITTLE CHANGE NOTED ON N. Y. BOND MARKET

New York (AP)—An upward movement so narrow it was hardly discernible was displayed by the bond market today in activity on a par with former sessions of this week.

CATTLE PRICES DROP TO NEW LOW LEVELS

Not Since 1922 Have Hog Values Gone So Low, Reports Say

Chicago (AP)—Average cost of all cattle at Chicago this week dropped to an even $8.00, against $8.31 last week and set a new low record for nine years. Not since 1922 have prices been so low. All the loss occurred on Monday, when demand was so poor that some of the packers did not even start their killing gangs and all eyes were on the market.

Yearling heifers were the only class in the entire market to show any advance. Topping at $9.95, they remained strong to 25c higher than a week ago. Bulls lost 25c. The sharpest loss of all was in the market for vealers, which declined to a top of $9.50, for a 50c to $1.00 loss.

Hog buyers were indifferent to the 5,000 plain hogs on sale today, and indicated that unless they could buy at cheaper prices they would not buy at all. Packers had 12,000 of the run of 13,000 on direct consignment and the rest were offered with 4,000, holdovers. Good to choice 170 to 180 lbs lights were held about $7.25, without a bid in the opening market. Quotations for light hogs stand 10 to 15c under last weekend, but heavy weights are that much higher, selling closer to lights than at any time this year.

Fat lambs sold steady for the week, after one of the hardest struggles of the season. Each day buyers tried for lower prices, but the bulk sold about steady. The top at $9.00 Saturday, while the range of $7.50 to $8.75 compares favorably to $7.00 to $8.00 last week end, considering receipts of $7,000 this week, against $7,800 a week ago.

EAST DE PERE IS DEFEATED BY NEW LONDON

Red and White Cagers Get Scare, However, in 28 to 26 Victory

New London—While West DePere was trimming Oconto on one side of the river, East DePere nearly did the same with the Red and Whites on the other side. In a game which looked like a walk away for the locals East DePere plugged away and with a few seconds left to play shot in a ball that rolled around the hoop, rolled out and saved New London from a tie. Stacy's boys won the game on their ability to shoot from the free throw line. Every player came through in this phase of the game. Dernbach was the star of the evening when time after time he dribbled through and past the DePere squad for shots. Only one substitution was made by the locals, Farrell taking Ladwig's place for a half minute.

The game opened in the first quarter with New London counting three times on free throws, while Raby was sinking in a long shot. DePere tied the count five all on two baskets and a free throw. Both of their shots were from about the center of the floor. Dernbach opened the second quarter when, assisted by Raby, he went through the whole team. Westphal got two baskets, while Dernbach added two more. The score closed at the half, 16-11. Both teams did considerable fouling in the third quarter, only one basket being made by DePere, the rest of the points being gained from free throws. The score at the quarter was 14-20. In the last quarter on the first play Westphal baffled the tip off ball under the basket where Pfeiffer had an easy pot shot. Chuck again came through with a long shot and with the game apparently on ice, Dernbach broke through. Pfeiffer followed with a long basket to bring the score 28-20. DePere started their belated rally and their long shots brought the score 26-28. While it is true that New London's defense went to pieces, credit must be given the up river boys whose long shots in this quarter went through the net without disturbing the ropes.
